19TH YEAR. NO. 4.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 29, 1902.

TWO CENTS.

STRUCK A BRIDGE

Three tow boats struck the Beaver bridge at Beaver late last night, causing much loss to the Mengahela coal combine. Five coal boats and one barge and one flat are lying in the bottom of the river as result of the accidents.

Shortly after 10 o'clock last night a telephone message was received at Georgetown from Merri dam, asking persons there to keep a lookout for stray property. All night a watch was kept, but no coal boats, barges or flats came past. The Fred Wilson was the first boat to strike the bridge, and in so doing three coal boats and a yawl were destroyed. This accident was followed by the Josh Cook which lost one barge and one flat in the same manner. The Tom Rees also struck the bridge and lost two coal boats.

As soon as the accidents became known to the officials of the combine, messages were sent to all towns along the river asking that a watch be kept for stray craft, but this morning wharf master Gus Martindill said nothing was seen floating past this city. The Tom Rees tied to the shore just below Jethro during the night, where repairs were made to the damaged barges in the tow and left for the south about 10 o'clock. The Clifton, on its way up this morning, stopped at the wharf boat, from where the captain telephoned to Pittsburgh, receiving instructions to assist the disabled boats. The Clifton passed down for New Cumberland last evening, where its tow was delivered to another boat.

The river at this port today registered 13 feet and falling. The Queen City will be down this evening for Cincinnati. Considerable ice is passing out, but it is not as heavy as yesterday.

THE SESSION OF COUNCIL WAS A VERY BRIEF ONE

Northside Fire Station Project Was Brought to the Solons' Attention.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

Councilman Heddleston Speaks Earnestly of the Needs of That Section.

SUDDEN ADJOURNMENT TAKEN

Following the Transaction of Other Business of No Great Importance, New Lights Ordered—Ordinance to Improve Street.

Brevity marked last night's session of council and the solons had not been more than comfortably seated until the motion for adjournment was offered and carried. There was little pressing business before the body, however, and this was rushed through without unnecessary debate.

R. C. Heddleston took up the proposition concerning the establishment of a fire station on the Northside and succeeded in getting his colleagues sufficiently interested to have a motion passed instructing the fire committee to investigate the matter.

It was first asked by Mr. Heddleston that a committee of two extra councilmen be appointed to act with the fire committee, but Mr. Bullock took exceptions to this motion, explaining that the fire committee should alone take the matter in charge.

Others agreed with Mr. Bullock, among them being Dr. Marshall, who jokingly remarked that Mr. Heddleston was not backward in asking for Northside improvements. Heddleston immediately took the floor and went after the doctor.

"I take notice," said Heddleston, "that the East End, which is not half so densely populated as the Northside, has its own fire station and also many other improvements which other suburban residents would consider as being luxuries."

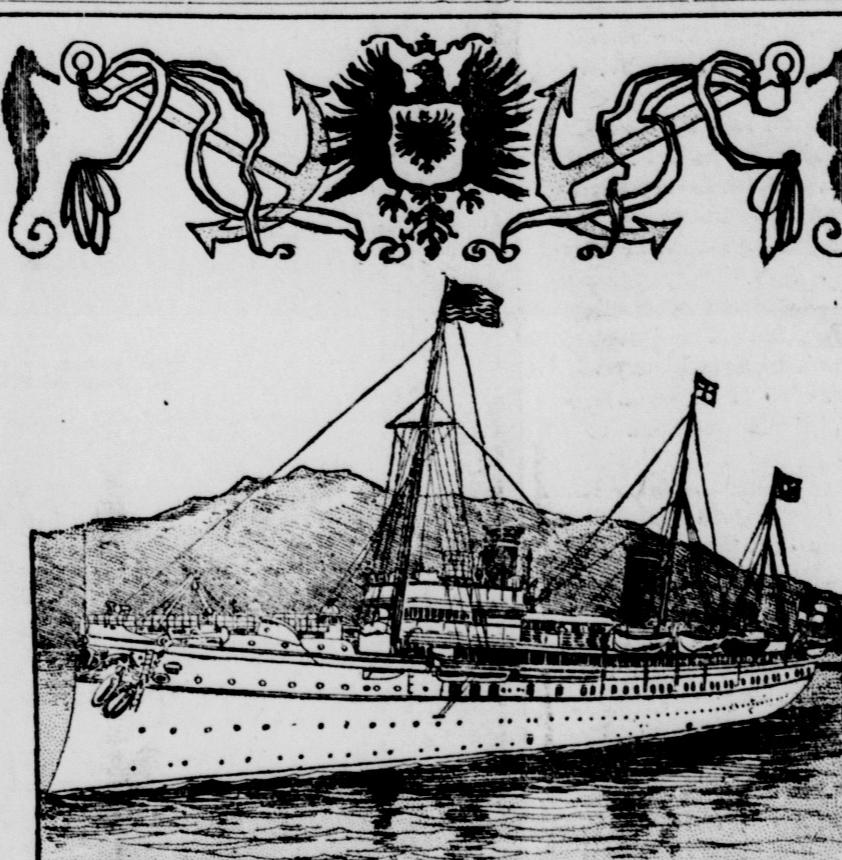

He then spoke of the need of better fire protection on the Northside and urged that the people of that section be given relief. He agreed to amend his original motion so that the matter would be left entirely in the hands of the fire committee, and it was passed with only one dissenting vote.

During the progress of the session Mr. Bullock held in his fingers a nice, fat cigar, which looked as if it might have cost a nickel, at least. Several times he was about to strike a match to light it, but the rule forbidding smoking stayed him. Finally, however, he appealed for relief and asked that the rule be forgotten long enough to allow him to tackle the long-filler.

The motion received a second, but before a vote was taken considerable expostulation was resorted to. Dr. Marshall strongly objected, but the motion carried nevertheless. Then before anything further was done the motion to adjourn was made and carried.

During the earlier part of the session an ordinance was introduced providing for the grading of Pope avenue.

A new light was ordered to be placed at the corner of College and

NEAR A DISASTER

A landslide between here and Wellsville gave a street car filled with passengers an uncomfortably close call last evening about 8 o'clock. From some unknown cause a huge mass of earth and rocks, midway of the so-called mountain, fell to the street car track. That the 15 passengers, conductor and motorman on car No. 7, which was bound for Wellsville, did not meet death in a horrible manner is considered almost miraculous.

The car was in charge of Motorman Arthur Deville and, as is required on the down grades leading to the Walker switch, the car was running at a moderate rate of speed. However, with a terrible crash it bumped into the debris which covered the track. The shock, coming so abruptly, confusion reigned supreme among the passengers. They were thrown violently from their seats and in a moment, when the full realization of what might have happened occurred to them, a general scramble ensued, every one attempting to reach assured safety at the same time.

At the point where the slide occurred the roadway is very narrow and the embankment almost perpendicular, the distance being 100 feet to the bottom of the precipice. Had the car been running at full speed the fate of the passengers would have been sealed. As it was, all escaped unharmed and the only loss entailed by the accident fell to the lot of the railway company, the head light, bumper and window panes being demolished. As a result of the collision traffic was delayed for an hour and a half until the track was cleared.

SYMPOSIUM OF OPINIONS AS REGARDS REGISTRATION

Action Must Be Taken On the Matter Promptly If At All.

MANY ARE IN FAVOR OF IT

And Those Opposed Are So Mainly On the Score of the Expense.

ALL PARTIES ARE REPRESENTED

In the Interviews Given And the Majority Are Emphatic in Their Approval of the Proposition to Have the State Registration Law Here.

The bill providing for the extension of the registration laws to include East Liverpool has now been before the people for several days, and if it is to be enacted at this session of the legislature, steps along this line must be taken at once. With a view of securing the sentiment of the public respecting the proposed legislation, the News Review today obtained the opinions of men of all political parties with the following result:

Rev. Clark Crawford, D. D.—You cannot state too emphatically that I am in favor of registration. East Liverpool, a border city, needs it much more than some of the larger cities. Every good citizen should favor any measure that is calculated to prevent fraudulent voting. Registration laws are an important safeguard of this kind and we should have them.

George H. Owen—I am in favor of the measure and will do all my power to secure its passage.

M. E. Miskall—I have talked with a number of people from cities having registration and in all cases have heard the plan favorably spoken of. It would be a good thing for East Liverpool.

Dr. G. P. Ikirt—if the city has reached a point in its advancement where it thinks it can stand the additional expense, I believe it would be a good thing. The principle of the thing is all right.

George Peach—I do not think the people generally want registration. The expense involved is considerable, and we are not prepared at this time to stand it. If there is any crookedness in the manner of conducting our elections—and I do not believe there is—there are laws to punish the guilty ones.

J. C. Walsh—I am in favor of registration. It may be if the system is put in operation we will find more Democrats in the neighborhood.

Ed Cook—You can say I am very much in favor of the plan.

J. J. Weisend—Yes, registration would be a very excellent thing, and I favor it.

W. A. Weaver—I cannot see the necessity for it. I have visited the voting precincts on a number of occasions when elections were being held and I believe they were conducted as fairly as could be possible. I believe the election officers of East Liverpool to be honest men and I would not be in favor of adding to the outlay of the already overburdened taxpayer.

Mayor W. C. Davidson—The city ought to have it.

J. H. Burgess—it is a good thing, if not too expensive.

Wintering in Colorado And Utah.

The climate of Colorado and Utah has long been world famous, but it is only within recent years that attention has been given to the delightful winter climate of these states. Today physicians all over the United States send their patients to Colorado and Utah to escape the rigors of eastern winters and to benefit by the invigorating atmosphere and health-giving sunshine.

It is not necessary to add an elaborate argument—the conclusion is self-evident and inevitable. The winter climate of Colorado and Utah on the whole presents advantages for the invalid and the pleasure-seeker that cannot fail to command attention.

An erroneous impression prevails that because the Rocky mountains have a high elevation the mercury in the thermometer drops down below zero in the winter season and stops there, and that the snow mounts up with the altitude. The fact is that the average precipitation of moisture in the lowlands of the mountain region during the entire year is only 11.15 inches. With such average precipitation there is practically no danger of snow blockades on the railroads, save at a few points exposed to drifts and these points have been amply protected. This is especially true of the lines of the Denver & Rio Grande and the Rio Grande Western between Denver and Ogden at all seasons of the year.

Facts speak for themselves, and the fact is that travel over "The Scenic Line of the World" has gone on with less interruption from snow blockades during the last ten winters than it has upon the majority of railroads in other localities which are popularly supposed to be more free from such delays than the mountain systems. LATTER MODIFIED VASTERION

Further Hostilities at Last Time
Were Averted—Sharp Debates Over
Philippine Question—Teller and Tillman Had Row.

Washington, Jan. 29.—The Philippine storm was central in the Senate chamber yesterday for three hours. At first it was wild and tempestuous, and the spectators who crowded the galleries watch breathlessly.

Lodge and Teller

debates is not senators say it there has been such a hurricane of personal taunt, of ugly charges and of unmodified criticism as was witnessed yesterday. Not since the discussion of the resolutions calling up to the Hispano-American war have any scenes occurred in the Senate comparable with yesterday. Even the debate lacked the personal bitterness manifested at times yesterday. Irritation was aroused on both sides of the chamber and once or twice personal encounters between senators seemed imminent. Once Senator Teller taunted the Republican senators by declaring they knew the statements made in a recent dispatch from Manila, in which General Wheaton was reported as criticizing the opponents of the government's policy in the Philippines, were true, a half dozen Republicans were on their feet in an instant. Senator Lodge, at whom the taunt seemed to be aimed particularly, hurriedly crossed from his seat in the center to the Republican side to the main aisle of the Senate, and, white to the lips, passionately challenged the statement of the Colorado senator, and demanded that he withdraw it. Senator Teller so modified the statement that further hostilities at that time were averted.

One of the sharpest colloquies of the session was between Senators Spooner, of Wisconsin, and Tillman, of South Carolina.

The race problem, involving the lynching of negroes, was interjected into the controversy, and much feeling was manifested by both senators. In the course of the colloquy Mr. Spooner declared that if the same rule were to be applied to the colored people in the Philippines as Mr. Tillman referred to in the south, then "God help the colored man in the Philippines."

"God help him in the Philippines," shouted the South Carolina senator, passionately. "You have already butchered in three years three times as many as the Spaniards did in three centuries."

"It is one thing," reported Mr. Spooner, "to kill men with arms in their hands against the government and against the flag. It is another to burn them."

Senators Much Excited.

Senators, in their excitement, seemed for the moment to have forgotten the subject of debate. The chair (Mr. Frye) was able with difficulty to maintain order. When the discussion finally was ended for the day, the chair felt called upon seriously to admonish senators that the rules of the body had not been observed, and after reading the rule which had been violated he expressed the hope that in the future senators would have a care to observe it. Such an admonition has not been made by the presiding officer of the Senate in many years.

Prior to the outbreak on the Philippine question the Senate concluded the consideration of the bill establishing a department of commerce, and passed it. The name of the new department was changed to that of the department of commerce and labor.

The American Woman and Her Gowns

By Mrs. CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW

THOROUGHLY ENJOY WHAT IS KNOWN AS SOCIETY. IT SEEMS TO ME EVERY WOMAN OUGHT TO TRY TO FIT HERSELF TO PRESIDE GRACEFULLY AND GRACIOUSLY AT THE HEAD OF HER HUSBAND'S TABLE, and I am delighted that I am to preside over Senator Depew's. America seems almost like an undiscovered country to me, for I went abroad when I was but a little girl and have lived almost ever since in Paris. Still, once an American always an American is my motto, and I do not think an American becomes less an American because he or she happens to be living for some time abroad. I don't feel the least bit expatriated. I suppose that I shall become so infatuated with America I shall never want to go back to Paris except—well, except for gowns. I brought over twelve trunks full of new ones.

I THINK EVERY WOMAN SHOULD GO TO PARIS FOR HER GOWNS—YES, EVEN AMERICANS.

For I think most of our best dressed American women are those who have allowed their own taste to be modified and deepened by London or Paris masters of the mode. Not that I want to be too positive, you know, for I've been so long away, but from what I've seen of American women abroad I'm quite sure of what I say. I have for so many years been used to the cosmopolitan life of Paris that I'm sure I shall feel at once at home in Washington.

reciprocity hearings were resumed before the ways and means committee, with delegates representing the beet sugar industry of Colorado and a number of Cubans, representing the planters of the island, in attendance. F. K. Carey, of Colorado, spoke of the development of the beet sugar industry of Colorado and its bright prospects, if not endangered by Cuban concessions, which, he asserted, would rebound to the great advantage of the American Sugar Refining Company.

A bubble which had been pricked, he said, was that Cuba was suffering from starvation. This idea had been industriously encouraged by the pamphleteering of the sugar company and yet the claim had been torn to pieces during these hearings.

Representative Hopkins said Mr. Carey's assertion of injury to the beet sugar industry was only an assumption and he expressed a belief that a reduction could be made of a certain percentage without destroying the beet sugar industry.

Representatives Dalzell and Grosvenor took part in the discussion, stating that the industry to the domestic producers had been shown by this and other witnesses. Mr. Grosvenor remarked that any one could see this result, who could put two and two together.

F. B. Machado, head of the Cuban delegation of planters, said in part:

"The Platt amendment, attached as an appendage to our constitution, chained the Cubans to this country to such extent that we are powerless to help ourselves, or to develop our internal life, because the pathways for dealing with outsiders are closed to us. Therefore, Cuba must starve if necessary without even the right to ask for relief. It has been said here that the Cubans has the cheek to knock at the door for alms, like beggars. The Cubans will be eternally grateful to you for giving us our liberty, even with the Platt amendment. But that does not mean we are eternally forbidden to come to you and that your final word has been said in Cuba. As we have no personality, at whose door shall we knock."

REAR ADMIRAL KIMBERLY DEAD.

Never Evaded a Duty During His Naval Career of Fifty-five Years.

Washington, Jan. 29.—The navy department was informed of the death from heart disease of Rear Admiral Lewis A. Kimberly (retired) at West Newton, Mass.

Rear Admiral Kimberly was one of the officers first appointed on the Schley court of inquiry last summer. He was compelled, however, to decline the duty on account of his health. His reluctance to evade any duty was shown by his pathetic statement to the secretary of the navy.

MEN BARKED LIKE DOGS.

Survivors of Porter's Expedition of Americans Were Delirious When Found by Relief.

Manila, Jan. 28.—General Chaffee curtailed his trip and returned here yesterday. He says he found the conditions satisfactory everywhere, except at Samar, where continuous rain during the past two months has retarded the campaign, especially against such an elusive enemy.

The condition of Captain David D. Porter's marines, who took part in the expedition into the interior of Samar, is much worse than previously described. They suffered fearful hardships and were without food for several days. The natives who accompanied the marines claimed they were unable to distinguish the edible roots, which the marines did not believe. The anger of the marines against the natives is intense. None of the latter returned with the marines.

The marines suffered so acutely from starvation that they ate raw, the flesh of two dogs.

When Captain Porter and the first three of his men came into camp they were delirious and difficulty was experienced in ascertaining the whereabouts of their companions.

Two Barked Like Dogs.

Williams, of the First Infantry, headed the relief expedition in the face of a torrential rain storm, which flooded the rivers. He succeeded in reaching the remaining 10 men, who would otherwise have certainly perished. He found them all delirious. Two of the men were discovered in branches of trees, barking like dogs. Some of the marines are so ill that they are not likely to recover.

General Chaffee has endeavored to obtain full details of the trip of the marines, but Captain Porter is not yet able to lucidly explain matters.

The expedition into the interior of Samar, led by Captain David D. Porter, of the Marine corps, numbered 36 men. It had been absent two weeks. The marines had been provided with rations for only five days. On Jan. 21 Captain Porter and 26 members of his party reached the coast of the island of Samar. The other 10 men were missing and little hope of their safety was entertained.

PRESBYTERIAN PASTOR PRAISES PE-RU-NA.

First Presbyterian Church of Greensboro, Ga., and Its Pastor and Elder.

Mr. M. J. Rossman, a prominent merchant of Greensboro, Ga., and an elder in the Presbyterian church of that place, writes:

"For a long time I was troubled with catarrh of the kidneys and tried many remedies, all of which gave me no relief. Peruna has become so justly famous, its merits are known to so many people of high and low stations, that no one hesitates to see his name in print recommending Peruna.

A dignified representative of the Presbyterian church in the person of Rev. E. G. Smith does not hesitate to state publicly that he has used Peruna in his family and found it cured when other remedies failed.

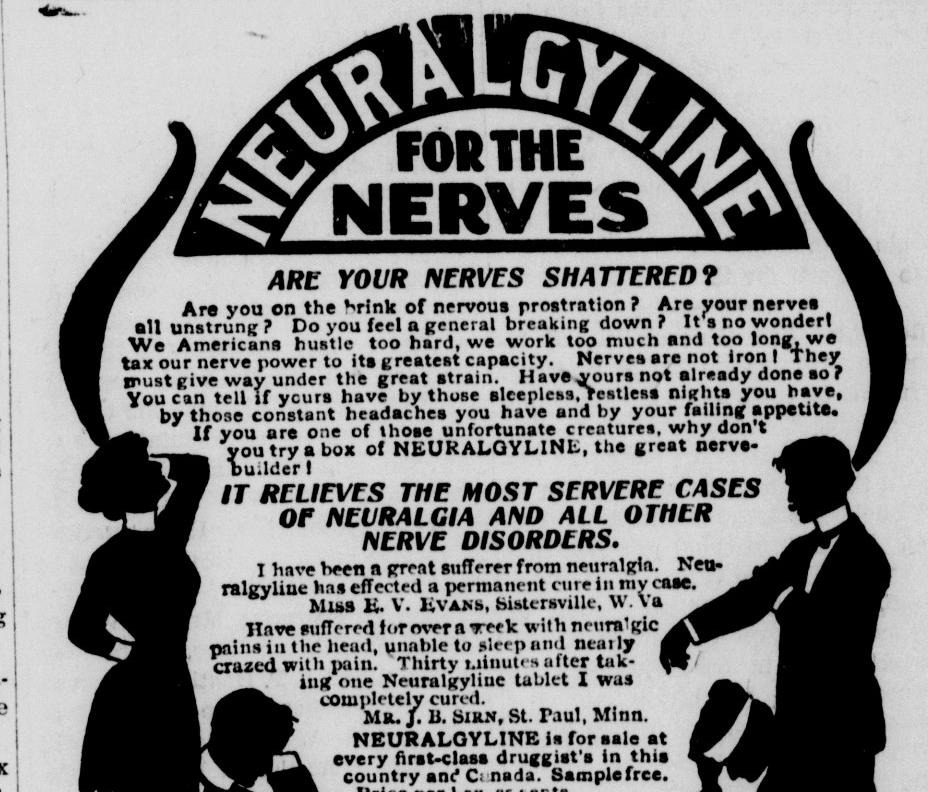

Rev. E. G. Smith, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Greensboro, Ga., writes:

"Having used Peruna in my family for some time it gives me pleasure to testify to its true worth. My little boy seven years of age had been suffering for some time with catarrh of the lower bowels. Other remedies had failed, but after taking two bottles of Peruna the trouble almost entirely disappeared. For this specific malady I consider it well nigh a specific. As a tonic for weak and worn out people it has few or no equals."

REV. E. G. SMITH.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Lodge Wildly Angry

Taunted Into Mad Temper,
He Rushed Toward Teller,
In Senate.

LATTER MODIFIED ASPIRATION

Further Hostilities at Last Time
Were Averted—Sharp Debates Over
Philippine Question—Squier and Tillman Had Row.

Washington, Jan. 29.—The Philippine delegation was called into the Senate chamber yesterday for the first time since the debates had been adjourned. At times it looked as if the spectators would have been breathless in their watch of the Lodge Teller speech.

Debates are not infrequent, but there has been such a bitter vituperation of personal taunt, of ugly charges and of unmodified criticism as was witnessed yesterday. Not since the discussion of the resolutions leading up to the Hispano-American war have any scenes occurred in the Senate comparable with yesterday.

The debate lacked the personal bitterness manifested at times yesterday. Irritation was aroused on both sides of the chamber and once or twice personal encounters between senators seemed imminent. Once when Senator Teller taunted the Republican senators by declaring they knew the statements made in a recent dispatch from Manila, in which General Wheaton was reported as criticizing the opponents of the government's policy in the Philippines, were one a half dozen Republicans were on their feet in an instant. Senator

Lodge, at whom the taunt seemed to be aimed particularly, hurriedly

crossed from his seat in the center to the Republican side to the main aisle of the Senate, and, white to the lips, passionately challenged the statement of the Colorado senator,

and demanded that he withdraw it.
Senator Teller so modified the statement that further hostilities at that time were averted.

One of the sharpest colloquies of the session was between Senators
Spooner, of Wisconsin, and Tillman,
of South Carolina. The race problem involving the lynching of negroes was interjected into the controversy, and much feeling was manifested by both senators. In the course of the colloquy Mr. Spooner declared that if the same rule were to be applied to the colored people in the Philippines as Mr. Tillman referred to in the south, then "God help

the colored man in the Philippines."

"God help him in the Philippines now," shouted the South Carolina senator, passionately. "You have already butchered in three years three times as many as the Spaniards did
in three centuries."

"It is one thing," retorted Mr.
Spooner, "to kill men with arms in their hands against the government and against the flag. It is another to burn them."

Senators Much Excited.

Senators, in their excitement, seemed for the moment to have forgotten
the subject of debate. The chair (Mr.
Fre) was able with difficulty to maintain order. When the discussion finally was ended for the day, the chair fell called upon seriously to admonish senators that the rules of the body had not been observed, and after reading the rule which had been violated he expressed the hope that in the future senators would have a chance to observe it. Such an admission had not been made by the presiding officer of the senate in many years.

Prior to the outbreak on the Philippines question the senate concluded
the consideration of the bill establishing a department of commerce, and passed it. The name of the new department was changed to that of the department of commerce and la-

Washington, Jan. 29.—The Cuban

The American Woman and Her Gowns

By Mrs. CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW

THOROUGHLY ENJOY WHAT IS KNOWN AS SOCIETY. IT SEEMS TO ME EVERY WOMAN OUGHT TO TRY TO FIT HERSELF TO PRESIDE GRACEFULLY AND GRACIOUSLY AT THE HEAD OF HER HUSBAND'S TABLE, and I am delighted that I am to preside over Senator Depew's. America seems almost like an undiscovered country to me, for I went abroad when I was but a little girl and have lived almost ever since in Paris. Still, once an American always an American is my motto, and I do not think an American becomes less an American because he or she happens to be living for some time abroad. I don't feel the least bit expatriated. I suppose that I shall become so infatuated with America I shall never want to go back to Paris except—well, except for gowns. I brought over twelve trunks full of new ones.

I THINK EVERY WOMAN SHOULD GO TO PARIS FOR HER GOWNS—YES, EVEN AMERICANS.

For I think most of our best dressed American women are those who have allowed their own taste to be modified and deepened by London or Paris masters of the mode. Not that I want to be too positive, you know, for I've been so long away, but from what I've seen of American women abroad I'm quite sure of what I say. I have for so many years been used to the cosmopolitan life of Paris that I'm sure I shall feel at once at home in Washington.

reciprocity hearings were resumed before the ways and means committee, with delegates representing the beet sugar industry of Colaroda and a number of Cubans, representing the planters of the island, in attendance. F. K. Carey, of Colorado, spoke of the development of the beet sugar industry of Colorado and its bright prospects, if not endangered by Cuban concessions, which, he asserted, would rebound to the great advantage of the American Sugar Refining Company.

A bubble which had been pricked, he said, was that Cuba was suffering from starvation. This idea had been industriously encouraged by the pamphleteering of the sugar company and yet the claim had been torn to pieces during these hearings.

Representative Hopkins said Mr. Carey's assertion of injury to the beet sugar industry was only an assumption and he expressed a belief that a reduction could be made or a certain percentage without destroying the beet sugar industry.

Representatives Dalzell and Grosvenor took part in the discussion, stating that the industry to the domestic producers had been shown by this and other witnesses. Mr. Grosvenor remarked that any one could see this result, who could put two and two together.

F. B. Machado, head of the Cuban delegation of planters, said in part: "The Platt amendment, attached as an appendage to our constitution, chained the Cubans to this country to such extent that we are powerless to help ourselves, or to develop our internal life, because the pathways for dealing with outsiders are closed to us. Therefore, Cuba must starve if necessary without even the right to ask for relief. It has been said here that the Cubans has the cheek to knock at the door for alms, like beggars. The Cubans will be eternally grateful to you for giving us our liberty, even with the Platt amendment. But that does not mean we are eternally forbidden to come to you and that your final word has been said in Cuba. As we have no personality, at whose door shall we knock?"

REAR ADMIRAL KIMBERLY DEAD.

Never Evaded a Duty During His

Naval Career of Fifty-five

Years.

Washington, Jan. 29.—The navy department was informed of the death from heart disease of Rear Admiral Lewis A. Kimberly (retired) at West Newton, Mass.

Rear Admiral Kimberly was one of the officers first appointed to the Schley court of inquiry last summer. He was compelled, however, to decline the duty on account of his health. His reluctance to evade any duty was shown by his pathetic statement to the secretary of the navy.

The condition of Captain David D. Porter's marines, who took part in the expedition into the interior of Samar, is much worse than previously described. They suffered fearful hardships and were without food for several days. The natives who accompanied the marines claimed they were unable to distinguish the edible roots, which the marines did not believe. The anger of the marines against the natives is intense. None of the latter returned with the marines.

The marines suffered so acutely from starvation that they ate raw, the flesh of two dogs.

When Captain Porter and the first three of his men came into camp they were delirious and difficulty was experienced in ascertaining the whereabouts of their companions.

Two Barked Like Dogs.

Williams, of the First infantry, headed the relief expedition in the face of a torrential rain storm, which flooded the rivers. He succeeded in reaching the remaining 10 men, who would otherwise have certainly perished. He found them all delirious. Two of the men were discovered in branches of trees, barking like dogs. Some of the marines are so ill that they are not likely to recover.

General Chaffee has endeavored to obtain full details of the trip of the marines, but Captain Porter is not able to lucidly explain matters.

The expedition into the interior of Samar, led by Captain David D. Porter, of the Marine corps, numbered 26 men. It had been absent two weeks. The marines had been provided with rations for only five days.

On Jan. 21 Captain Porter and 26 members of his party reached the coast of the island of Samar. The other 10 men were missing and little hope of their safety was entertained.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 29, 1902.

If the people of this city desire that East Liverpool shall be brought under the registration laws by action of the present legislature, now is the time to prove it. As we understand it, Representative Crist stands ready to introduce the bill which has been drawn up at the instance of the Republican city committee and push it to passage, if possible, provided he is satisfied that the citizens are in favor of the measure. The arguments in favor of registration have been put forth again and again and need not be repeated. That they are valid is proven by the fact that no successful attempt to controvert them has been made. From expressions which have been published from time to time in this paper, we believe that the great majority of the citizens of East Liverpool earnestly desire a registration law. That being the case, there ought to be no difficulty in getting it. It is more needed here than in many of the large cities. Unless there is a general awakening on the subject, so that the wishes of the public may be made plainly manifest to the legislature, the whole matter is likely to go by default. The bill has been long enough before the people so that it should be fully understood, and if the people want it made a law, now is the time to work for it.

Representative Crumpacker, of Indiana, has drawn up and is prepared to submit to congress a bill providing for a reduced representation in congress in such southern states as disregard the law and the constitution by disfranchising large numbers of citizens. His bill, in brief, provides that in any state where voters are disfranchised, on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude, the representation in congress shall be reduced in the proportion that the number of disfranchised voters bears to the total voting population of the state. Mr. Crumpacker has prepared a brief showing showing that the provision comes within the scope of the constitution, and is justified by the over-representation from some of the southern states. He will cite for illustration the fact that the vote for congress in his district, the Tenth Indiana, in 1900, was 53,220, while the entire vote of the first six districts in Georgia was but 54,018. The representation in the southern states shows many instances of this kind, and Mr. Crumpacker will appeal for legislation remedying the evil. The question is likely to lead to spirited discussion in congress, whether a decision is reached or not.

Directory compilers at Youngstown estimate the population of that city to be over 54,000, a gain of nearly 10,000 since the 1900 census. Directory men usually give generous figures, but still it cannot be doubted that Youngstown is growing rapidly, both in industries and in population. An energetic and enterprising board of trade is doing much to add to the city's wealth and its future prospects.

The old adage, "It is better to wear out than to rust out," is emphasized by recent statistics from a high medical authority, showing that men who spend their lives in idleness die off much earlier than those who are engaged in steady and gainful occupations. It is well known that an idle brain is the devil's workshop, but it is not so well known that physical decay is its accompaniment.

The state board of charities, in its annual report, sensibly and strongly urges that the benevolent institutions of the state be removed from polities entirely. They should be run on a business basis, with a view solely to fulfilling their humane mission in the best interests of the state and of their inmates.

The east is still "the enemy's country," as regards the late William J. Bryan. The Democratic legislators of New Jersey supported for United States Senator Congressman McDermott, who repudiated Bryanism away back in 1896.

The Kentucky senate has adopted a resolution providing for the abolition of the ballot and the substitution of the viva voce system in that body. Evidently the Kentucky senate is going to keep right on looking for trouble.

Cincinnati wants Prince Henry to stop there to see her wonders. She should not fail to exhibit the man who saved $400,000 while drawing a salary of $25 per week.

Admiral Schley and General Miles have wisely decided not to enter politics. It is easy for a hero to lose his popularity by hunting political preferment.

There is nothing worth having that is not worth asking for. If East Liverpool wants registration, it should ask for it loudly and earnestly.

Bills for the creation of new state salaried positions cannot be too closely scrutinized by the legislature.

Though his bark is worse than his bite, Pitchfork Tillman ought to be muzzled just the same.

OBITUARY

Rev. William Hastings.

Rev. William Hastings, of Toronto former pastor of the M. P. church in East Liverpool, and one of the best known ministers of that denomination in eastern Ohio, died at his home yesterday afternoon at 4:30 after a protracted illness, due to a general breaking down. He was born in Guernsey county in 1830, received a common school education, attended Oberlin university for three years, and in 1852 was graduated from Madison college. He was engaged in teaching until 1855. In 1856 he joined the Muskingum M. P. conference, of which was still a member. He held several pastorate, including East Liverpool and later Toronto, where he preached until superannuated. Besides being pastor here, preceding Rev. Mr. Swift, he for a time supplied the pulpit in the absence of a regular pastor.

Rev. Mr. Hastings enlisted in 1861 in Company B, Seventeenth O. V. I. In 1863 he resigned and came home on account of ill health, re-enlisting the following year. In the fall of 1864 he became chaplain of the One Hundred and Forty-Third regiment. After the war he resumed his clerical labors, winning a reputation as a powerful preacher. In 1854 he married Annie Crites, of Fairfield county, O., who died in 1888. He is survived by several brothers and sisters and by the following children: Frank L. and William C. Fostoria; Mrs. G. W. McCreary, Wellsville; Mrs. Flora Martin, Tiffin, and J. T. Hastings, Toronto. He was a member of the Masons, I. O. O. F. and G. A. R. The funeral will take place from the M. P. church, Toronto, Friday at 1 p. m., Rev. F. C. Hummell conducting the services.

Mrs. Alexander Connell.

Mrs. Alexander Connell, of Sixth street, passed peacefully away at her home at 11:30 last night, from old age. She was born in Calcutta Mar. 6, 1815. Her maiden name was Jane Azdell. She was educated in Calcutta schools. At the age of 26 she was married to Alex Connell. Eight children have been born to bless the union, of whom John K. Connell, of Indianola, Ia., and Mrs. S. C. Milligan, of Kingman, Kan., survive. Nine grandchildren are left to mourn their loss.

Mr. and Mrs. Connell moved to East Liverpool about seventeen years ago, and they have since made their home at the corner of Sixth and Jackson streets. Mrs. Connell has lived in Columbian county all her life and she has many friends who will be pained to hear of her demise.

While still a young girl Mrs. Connell joined the United Presbyterian church, and had remained a devout member. She was energetic and very unassuming. She possessed a good and generous disposition and was best loved by those who knew her most. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed.

Edward McGaffick.

Edward McGaffick, aged 10 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. McGaffick, of Elizabeth avenue, died this morning at 3 o'clock after several months' illness. While the arrangements for the funeral have not been completed, the services will likely be held Friday afternoon, interment being made at Riverview cemetery.

POTTERY NEWS

Ambrose Cartwright has returned home from a meeting of the board of directors of the Barberville Pottery company. When seen yesterday afternoon regarding the progress being made on the new factory he said: "The floor on the second story was completed Monday and next week the kilns will be started. We expect to have the plant in operation about June 1, and will make all sorts of novelties. We have just received applications from three young men for positions in the clay department, but have not assured positions to any. We have many applications on file, and have only secured the services of two men—that of a manager and one to look after our machinery."

Kilndrawers' local No. 17, at their next meeting, will form a permanent relief association. At the last meeting a special committee was appointed to meet next Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock to form plans for an organization of this character, the same to be presented at the meeting. As No. 17 is composed of almost 180 members, many of these will join the relief association upon its formation.

As soon as the weather moderates the Bradshaw China company will build two new decorating kilns. They are only making dinner ware now, and will make that a specialty. They are putting in a system of water pipes for fire protection and will have 12 lines of hose—one in each department.

A new gas burner will be tried under the boilers at the Diamond pottery tomorrow. This plant which has only been in partial operation this week will be started in full next week, according to a statement of a member of the company yesterday.

Turners' and Handlers' local No. 10, at their meeting next Monday evening, will consider the proposition to form a sick and benefit association. It was proposed to talk this subject over at the last session, but time would not permit.

James Mount, a jiggerman at the East Liverpool pottery, has commenced the erection of a five-room frame house in Chester. It will be ready for occupancy within two months.

A meeting of the clay workers will be held Thursday evening.

AT THE THEATER

A dramatic treat is in store for the theater goers at the opera house next Saturday evening when Miss Alice Archer will make her first appearance in this city in Forbes Heerman's comedy drama, "Jess, of the Bar Z Ranch," a story of life in the far west. The piece will be presented in an elaborate manner and by practically the same cast which supported Belle Archer in the original production. Don't fail to see this, but be brave and bring your sisters, your cousins and your aunts, and have a good old fashioned laugh all together.

Farce comedy will hold the boards at the opera house Friday evening when Welch-Francis and their select company of fun makers will produce the funniest of all farce comedies, "The Flip Mr. Flop." WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 29, 1902.

If the people of this city desire that East Liverpool shall be brought under the registration laws by action of the present legislature, now is the time to prove it. As we understand it, Representative Crist stands ready to introduce the bill which has been drawn up at the instance of the Republican city committee and push it to passage, if possible, provided he is satisfied that the citizens are in favor of the measure. The arguments in favor of registration have been put forth again and again and need not be repeated. That they are valid is proven by the fact that no successful attempt to controvert them has been made. From expressions which have been published from time to time in this paper, we believe that the great majority of the citizens of East Liverpool earnestly desire a registration law. That being the case, there ought to be no difficulty in getting it. It is more needed here than in many of the large cities. Unless there is a general awakening on the subject, so that the wishes of the public may be made plainly manifest to the legislature, the whole matter is likely to go by default. The bill has been long enough before the people so that it should be fully understood, and if the people want it made a law, now is the time to work for it.

Representative Crumpacker, of Indiana, has drawn up and is prepared to submit to congress a bill providing for a reduced representation in congress in such southern states as disregard the law and the constitution by disfranchising large numbers of citizens. His bill, in brief, provides that in any state where voters are disfranchised, on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude, the representation in congress shall be reduced in the proportion that the number of disfranchised voters bears to the total voting population of the state. Mr. Crumpacker has prepared a brief showing that the provision comes within the scope of the constitution, and is justified by the over-representation from some of the southern states. He will cite for illustration the fact that the vote for congress in his district, the Tenth Indiana, in 1900, was 53,220, while the entire vote of the first six districts in Georgia was but 54,018. The representation in the southern states shows many instances of this kind, and Mr. Crumpacker will appeal for legislation remedying the evil. The question is likely to lead to spirited discussion in congress, whether a decision is reached or not.

Directory compilers at Youngstown estimate the population of that city to be over 54,000, a gain of nearly 10,000 since the 1900 census. Directory men usually give generous figures, but still it cannot be doubted that Youngstown is growing rapidly, both in industries and in population. An energetic and enterprising board of trade is doing much to add to the city's wealth and its future prospects.

The old adage, "It is better to wear out than to rust out," is emphasized by recent statistics from a high medical authority, showing that men who spend their lives in idleness die off much earlier than those who are engaged in steady and gainful occupations. It is well known that an idle brain is the devil's workshop, but it is not so well known that physical decay is its accompaniment.

The state board of charities, in its annual report, sensibly and strongly urges that the benevolent institutions of the state be removed from politics entirely. They should be run on a business basis, with a view solely to fulfilling their humane mission in the best interests of the state and of their inmates.

The east is still "the enemy's country," as regards the late William J. Bryan. The Democratic legislators of New Jersey supported for United States Senator Congressman McDermott, who repudiated Bryanism away back in 1896.

The Kentucky senate has adopted a resolution providing for the abolition of the ballot and the substitution of the viva voce system in that body. Evidently the Kentucky senate is going to keep right on looking for trouble.

Cincinnati wants Prince Henry to stop there to see her wonders. She should not fail to exhibit the man who saved $400,000 while drawing a salary of $25 per week.

Admiral Schley and General Miles have wisely decided not to enter politics. It is easy for a hero to lose his popularity by hunting political preference.

There is nothing worth having that is not worth asking for. If East Liverpool wants registration, it should ask for it loudly and earnestly.

Bills for the creation of new state salaried positions cannot be too closely scrutinized by the legislature.

Though his bark is worse than his bite, Pitchfork Tillman ought to be muzzled just the same.

OBITUARY

Rev. William Hastings.

Rev. William Hastings, of Toronto, former pastor of the M. P. church in East Liverpool, and one of the best known ministers of that denomination in eastern Ohio, died at his home yesterday afternoon at 4:30 after a protracted illness, due to a general breaking down. He was born in Guernsey county in 1830, received a common school education, attended Otterbein university for three years, and in 1852 was graduated from Madison college. He was engaged in teaching until 1855. In 1856 he joined the Muskingum M. P. conference, of which was still a member. He held several pastorates, including East Liverpool and later Toronto, where he preached until superannuated. Besides being pastor here, preceding Rev. Mr. Swift, he for a time supplied the pulpit in the absence of a regular pastor.

Rev. Mr. Hastings enlisted in 1861 in Company B, Seventeenth O. V. I. In 1863 he resigned and came home on account of ill health, re-enlisting the following year. In the fall of 1864 he became chaplain of the One Hundred and Forty-Third regiment. After the war he resumed his clerical labors, winning a reputation as a powerful preacher. In 1854 he married Anne Crites, of Fairfield county, O., who died in 1888. He is survived by several brothers and sisters and by the following children: Frank L. and William C. Postorius; Mrs. G. W. McCreary, Wellsburg; Mrs. Flora Martin, Tiffin, and J. T. Hastings, Toronto. He was a member of the Masons, I. O. O. F. and G. A. R. The funeral will take place from the M. P. church, Toronto, Friday at 1 p. m., Rev. F. C. Hummell conducting the services.

Mrs. Alexander Connell.

Mrs. Alexander Connell, of Sixth street, passed peacefully away at her home at 11:30 last night, from old age. She was born in Calcutta Mar. 6, 1815. Her maiden name was Jane Azzell. She was educated in Calcutta schools. At the age of 26 she was married to Alex Connell. Eight children have been born to bless the union, of whom John K. Connell, of Indianola, Ia., and Mrs. S. C. Milligan, of Kingman, Kan., survive. Nine grandchildren are left to mourn their loss.

Mr. and Mrs. Connell moved to East Liverpool about seventeen years ago, and they have since made their home at the corner of Sixth and Jackson streets. Mrs. Connell has lived in Columbiana county all her life and she has many friends who will be pained to hear of her demise.

While still a young girl Mrs. Connell joined the United Presbyterian church, and had remained a devout member. She was energetic and very unassuming. She possessed a good and generous disposition and was best loved by those who knew her most. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed.

Edward McGaffick.

Edward McGaffick, aged 10 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. McGaffick, of Elizabeth avenue, died this morning at 3 o'clock after several months' illness. While the arrangements for the funeral have not been completed, the services will likely be held Friday afternoon, interment being made at Riverview cemetery.

POTTERY NEWS

Ambrose Cartwright has returned home from a meeting of the board of directors of the Barberville Pottery company. When seen yesterday afternoon regarding the progress being made on the new factory he said: "The floor on the second story was completed Monday and next week the kilns will be started. We expect to have the plant in operation about June 1, and will make all sorts of novelties. We have just received applications from three young men for positions in the clay department, but have not assured positions to any. We have many applications on file, and have only secured the services of two men—that of a manager and one to look after our machinery."

Kilndrawers' local No. 17, at their next meeting, will form a permanent relief association. At the last meeting a special committee was appointed to meet next Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock to form plans for an organization of this character, the same to be presented at the meeting. A new gas burner will be tried under the boilers at the Diamond pottery tomorrow. This plan which has only been in partial operation this week will be started in full next week, according to a statement of a member of the company yesterday.

Turners' and Handlers' local No. 10, at their meeting next Monday evening, will consider the proposition to form a sick and benefit association. It was proposed to talk this subject over at the last session, but time would not permit.

MORBID CROWD TO HANGING.

Disgusting Scenes at Harrisburg
Rowe and Keiper Executed.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 29.—Weston N. Keiper and Henry Rowe were hanged in the Harrisburg jail yard, in the presence of 1,000 people, for the murder of Charles W. Ryan, who was fatally wounded in a struggle while the men were robbing the Halifax National bank, at Halifax, Pa.

The murderers went to their death without a shudder and neither made any statement on the gallows or at any time since their trial. The crush for admission to the jail was so great that it required the combined efforts of the police force and the sheriff's deputies to keep the crowd away from the entrances.

Several of the jurors were forced to fight their way through the crowd into the prison. The house tops and telegraph poles in the vicinity were crowded with people eager to witness the execution. Two men with a camera secured admittance to the jail for the purpose of securing a snap shot of the hanging. Prison Warden Meetch detected them and took the camera away from them until after the execution. The bodies of Rowe and Keiper were sent last evening to Lykens. They will be buried from the homes of their parents in that place on Thursday.

William McDevitt, better known as "Fiddle," who was arrested last Friday evening, was arraigned before Mayor Dennis yesterday afternoon. He was charged with making an assault upon Evelyn Robinson, the story of which was published the day following his arrest.

To the mayor he strongly denied being guilty of the crime and as an explanation for the girl being found in his stable he said that Mr. Robinson, the girl's father, had given her a nickel to buy some chicken feed, but lost the money and was afraid to return home, whereupon he induced her to go to the stable while he endeavored to get her a nickel. The story did not satisfy the mayor, and the prisoner was bound over to court in the sum of $300, and remanded to jail.

DRILLING FOR OIL

Prospects on Territory Near the City Limits Considered Excellent.

It is now an assured fact that the oil territory located near the city limits on the Lisbon road and owned by the Lawson Oil and Gas company will be extensively developed as soon as the weather will permit. Yesterday four acres of this land was leased to Vance R. Todd and Jesse Johnson obtained a lease on one acre last week. These gentlemen have had years of experience in the drilling of wells and are confident that the results from their new leases will be good.

Mr. Johnson has been drilling on the Glenn farm in Jefferson county and recently sustained a considerable loss owing to his tools catching and breaking off in a well. After having them repaired he will remove them to the Lawson territory, where he expects to begin drilling April 1.

STORE AND DWELLING AT SIGNAL WERE BURNED.

Postmaster Cope And His Family Had a Narrow Escape And Saved Nothing.

The residence and store and also the postoffice of L. Cope, at Signal, were destroyed by fire at night. Mr. Cope heard a noise upstairs, went up and picked up a bed-tick and started to put it out of the door. It wedged in the casing and he could not get it out. He was shut in until the tick burned. When he got out he was severely burned.

The family saved nothing but their night clothes.

DIRECTORS WERE CHOSEN

At the Meeting of the Gas Apparatus Construction Company Yesterday.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Gas Apparatus and Construction company was held yesterday afternoon in the Potters' club, almost every share of stock being represented.

The condition of the plant at Chester was discussed and upon a report of Constructor A. W. Brown, the plant was accepted as completed by the inventor, Judge Williams, of Sewickley. The last parts of the machinery were delivered yesterday.

The following board of directors were elected: W. B. Hill, E. W. Hill, J. E. Ferrall, Joseph Betz, John J. Rose, William Edlanger, all of this city, and Mr. Sedgwick, of Martin's Ferry.

To Cure the Stammerer.

It is said that stammerers rarely if ever show any impediment of speech when speaking in whispers. On this fact a method of treatment has been advocated, which is as follows: For the first ten days speaking is prohibited. This will allow rest to the voice and constitutes the preliminary stage of treatment. During the next ten days speaking is permissible in the whispering voice, and in the course of the next fifteen days the ordinary conversation tone may be gradually employed.

SUCCESSFUL TURN WAS MADE

Against the Shorts in the Stock Market, Tuesday—Some Features of the Market.

New York, Jan. 29.—A successful turn was made against the shorts in Tuesday's stock market. How far the day's demand for stocks represented new buying from outside sources can only be conjectured. Conditions which were made the ground for selling Monday remained unaltered Tuesday, without affecting the strong tendency toward recovery. The weakness in the grain markets, which Monday was made the basis of rumors of financial troubles, was turned to a bull argument Tuesday as showing good conditions for the winter wheat crop. The formulation by the United Mine Workers of flat demands for higher wages, which depressed the coalers Monday, was ignored Tuesday. The report of December net earnings of the Erie and the Reading system were equally ignored. The decrease in net earnings for the Erie for the month was $118,163 and the decrease in the surplus of the Reading for the same period was $218,248. The Southern railway also reported a decrease in net earnings in December of $88,700. All of these stocks were quite conspicuous for activity and strength. It is thought that part of the recent selling of the coalmen has been in anticipation of this showing and that Tuesday's buying was short covering. These vagaries of sentiment indicate the professional character of the trading. The most important influence in the advance was the stimulating effect of the strong recovery of 3 more points in Amalgamated Copper. The dealings in this stock were almost twice as great as those in any other one stock. The further advance in raw copper and the heavy buying in London was taken to indicate that large requirements have been left uncovered, waiting for the price to touch bottom. The advance in Amalgamated Copper was taken by speculators to indicate a sentiment in favor of an advance by the Standard Oil party, which has long been supposed to favor quietude in speculation. Coupled with a published utterance of J. P. Morgan, expressing confidence in the maintenance of the country's prosperity, the effect was to impress speculators with the idea that the great financial powers were again in accord in favoring higher prices for stocks. The upward movement broadened and gained force up to the close, which was at about the best and strong. The reported agreement to maintain rates among western railroads and meat packers was a strengthening influence. The speculation in Sugar was based on the expectation of an advance in the production and had an important sympathetic effect.

The bond market was strong and individual bonds were not so over whelmingly conspicuous as of late.

Total sales, par value, $4,355,000.

TRIAL OF LAWYER PATRICK.

Capt. Baker Testified—Dr. Williams Was Cross-Examined.

New York, Jan. 29.—A large part of yesterday's session in the trial of Lawyer Albert T. Patrick for the murder of Millionaire William Marsh Rice was taken up in the examination of Captain James A. Baker, of Houston, Tex. He told of coming to New York and being surprised that Mr. Rice had engaged Patrick as his lawyer. He also related what occurred at his meeting with Patrick after Rice's death.

Early in the session yesterday Dr. Hamilton Williams, whose cross-examination was continued from Monday, reiterated his opinion that the condition of Mr. Rice's lungs was due to the inhalation of a gaseous irritant.

MINORITY REPORT CORRECT.

Many People in Manila Admit Statements Are True.

Manila, Jan. 29.—The criticism of the senate minority report on the Philippine tariff bill has been general, both in public and private, here, though many people admit the statements made in the report are correct.

General Wheaton's vigorous criticisms referred entirely to Prof. Schurman's speech at Boston, though he holds the professor in high personal esteem. The statement that a person who made such remarks here during those credited to the professor during his speech would be sent to jail referred merely to the recent sedition law.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

William McDevitt, Accused of a Grave Offense, Bound Over to Court.

William McDevitt, better known as "Fiddle," who was arrested last Friday evening, was arraigned before Mayor Dennis yesterday afternoon. He was charged with making an assault upon Evelyn Robinson, the story of which was published the day following his arrest.

To the mayor he strongly denied being guilty of the crime and as an explanation for the girl being found in his stable he said that Mr. Robinson, the girl's father, had given her a nickel to buy some chicken feed, but lost the money and was afraid to return home, whereupon he induced her to go to the stable while he endeavored to get her a nickel. The story did not satisfy the mayor, and the prisoner was bound over to court in the sum of $300, and remanded to jail.

DRILLING FOR OIL

Prospects on Territory Near the City Limits Considered Excellent.

It is now an assured fact that the oil territory located near the city limits on the Lisbon road and owned by the Lawson Oil and Gas company will be extensively developed as soon as the weather will permit. Yesterday four acres of this land was leased to Vance R. Todd and Jesse Johnson obtained a lease on one acre last week. These gentlemen have had years of experience in the drilling of wells and are confident that the results from their new leases will be good.

Mr. Johnson has been drilling on the Glenn farm in Jefferson county and recently sustained a considerable loss owing to his tools catching and breaking off in a well. After having them repaired he will remove them to the Lawson territory, where he expects to begin drilling April 1.

The landlady of the boarding house where Robinson lived said that he was somewhat irregular in his habits and that he did not always come home to dinner; but when at 2 o'clock in the morning it was reported that he had not appeared Captain Neale began to be uneasy. As he expressed it, "if Robinson has skipped, there'll be nothing doing."

Translated this meant that if a humble clerk of unknown antecedents had stained his soul with crime for $500 there remained only the profitless task of catching him and sending him to jail.

Elmendorf had no idea that Robinson had "skipped," principally because there was no apparent reason for it. The clerk had delivered the note to Elsie and had then left the house, as the testimony of the servant, a reliable woman long in Mrs. Simmons' employ, satisfactorily proved. That Robinson had immediately returned and committed the atrocious crime for a reward so small was, in Elmendorf's opinion, a wild hallucination, though he had heard such a hypothesis stated. But that Robinson's extreme agitation when brought to the scene was due to a more intimate knowledge of the affair than he had disclosed was a much more reasonable proposition.

As to the money in the note, Elmendorf was far from regarding it as the motive for the crime. He believed that the money had been there, for that was one of the few points upon which Elsie had made a positive declaration in her first response to questions, as Elmendorf had been informed by Kendall in their earliest interview at the hospital. She had said that she had removed the money and had laid it, with the note, upon the table. It had been stolen, but probably as a "blind," unless, indeed, some person connected with the police had comforted an itching palm with it.

Upon receiving his orders in regard to Robinson the detective went down town to the building in which Alden's office were situated. He took up an inconspicuous position near by and after half an hour of waiting had the pleasure of wishing Mr. Robinson good morning upon the sidewalk at a point about one hundred feet from the building. This was unfortunate for Captain Neale's man, Barnes, who was waiting in the doorway.

Elmendorf made no secret of his identity or of his errand, and Robinson seemed quite undisturbed.

"I was pretty badly upset yesterday afternoon," he said. "It was all so sudden and shocking. Of course I had no special interest in Miss Miller. Probably I haven't seen her more than three or four times in my life. But to think that this should have happened so soon after I had left her! I tell you it gave me a turn. I didn't feel much like being alone, so I went to see a fellow whom I know and spent the night in his rooms. How is Miss Miller this evening?"

Elmendorf replied that his advices were altogether favorable, and little more was said until they had entered Alden's private office, in which Robinson had a desk.

"I thought you knew Miss Miller quite well," said Elmendorf, taking a chair. "You spoke of her by her first name yesterday."

"Did it?" said Robinson, opening his eyes wide. "It was all so sudden and shocking. Of course I had no special interest in Miss Miller. Probably I haven't seen her more than three or four times in my life. But to think that this should have happened so soon after I had left her! I tell you it gave me a turn. "Did it?" said Robinson, opening his eyes wide. "Well, I might have said almost anything yesterday. I was nervous and that's a fact."

"How did it happen that you took the note?"

"Why, Mr. Alden was going to ring for a messenger boy," was the reply. "and then he mentioned that there was money in the note and asked me about one of our own boys, who happened to be out at the time. So I said I'd take the note. I wanted to go up to my room, and it's only a little way from where Miss Miller lived. I hadn't anything particular to do at the time."

"What did you want to go to your room for?"

"To get a letter I had left there," replied Robinson. "Nothing of any great importance."

"Came for you in the morning, I suppose, and you forgot to bring it down," said Elmendorf, with the air of one

The VALUE of LOVE IN A PLAY

By... VIOLA ALLEN

HERE IS NO SINGLE FEATURE OF A PLAY WHICH SO MAKES OR MARS FOR SUCCESS AS A PRETTY LOVE SCENE.

It is as important to the drama proper as a good tune which anybody can whistle is to a musical comedy or a thrilling, soul stirring climax to a melodrama. A PLAY WITHOUT A LOVE SCENE OR WITHOUT SOME SITUATION OR SERIES OF SITUATIONS IN WHICH THE ATTRACTION OF WOMAN FOR MAN WAS NOT DISPLAYED WOULD BE AN ANOMALY AND NINETY TIMES OUT OF A HUNDRED WOULD NOT BE TOLERATED BY AN AUDIENCE. This, of course, does not apply to tremendous tragedies, historical dramas or dramatic compositions in which the other deep passions of the soul are depicted. It is possible to have a piece from which love is tabooed. The experiment has been tried time and time again by playwrights, and a few successes have been attained. But in the main even in tragedies and historical plays the absence of the love element dooms the affair to failure. Probably the reason why the majestic tragedy of "Lear" has never made a permanent impression upon the theater going world is due to this cause. It turns upon filial ingratitude and is one of the strongest dramas ever written, but it does not and cannot appeal to the heart.

Emerson says that all the world loves a lover, and this neat epigram applies as much to audiences as to the public at large. A little book was once published entitled "How Men Propose," and it ran through I do not know how many editions. It is the same with audiences. THEY ENJOY SEEING HOW LOVE IS MADE. They take delight in the playwright's conception of the fact and the player's interpretation. It matters not whether the spectator is old or young, rich or poor, a bachelor or ten times married, he takes an invariable interest in the presentation of the tender passion.

"I think that was what I went to my room for."

"I think it wasn't," said Elmendorf, and at that moment, to the surprise of both, Alden entered the room.

CHAPTER X. "CLARENCE."

LDEN looked years younger than yesterday. His expression had lost much of its painful concentration and intensity, though a shrewd man might say he was still under the domination of a single thought.

"Such splendid news at the hospital," said he, "that I ventured down here for a few minutes. I can see her this afternoon, Jack," he added, addressing Robinson, "you'll have to look out for my mail for the next few days. I shall be at St. Winifred's all the time, or at the house next door on the west. Any news this morning, Mr. Elmendorf?"

"No," replied the detective. "I came down to have a little talk with Mr. Robinson, but as neither of us knows anything the result was not important. By the way, can I write a note at your desk?"

Alden was just raising the lid.

"Certainly," said he, and Elmendorf sat down and wrote fast with a sputtering pen.

"I don't see any blotter here," he said, when the pen stopped scratching.

"Never use one," rejoined Alden; "I don't have time. There's a pad, but I never blot anything on it."

"You don't spill as much ink as I do," said Elmendorf, "except on your signature. You write that black enough."

"Habit of mine," replied Alden. "How do you happen to know anything about it?"

"I saw the note you wrote yesterday."

Alden flushed.

"I couldn't help it," said Elmendorf hastily. "And let me tell you that I'm greatly mistaken if the result of my seeing it isn't very important."

"In what way?"

Elmendorf begged to be excused from giving an immediate answer, and Alden did not insist.

"This 'making trouble' that you mentioned last evening," he said, "is getting its work in this morning. I am shadowed by the most conspicuous man in Greater New York. Every time he fancies that I have forgotten his presence he barks like a dog and remarks to every one who will listen that the grip is worst in hot weather."

Elmendorf glanced at Alden with an anxious eye. He seemed to have something on his mind, but he said only:

"I'm surprised. There are shadows on the force who can't be picked out so easily."

Alden regarded him intently over the top of the desk upon which he was leaning.

"See if I've got any more letters outside, Jack," he said and added when Robinson had left the room, "Do you mean to say there's another one?"

"Sure," returned Elmendorf, "one for trouble and one for business. I don't know why I tell you these things, except that I hate Neale. He wants to know where you were yesterday, and he thinks you'll go there again. He expects you to throw the man with the grip and never notice the other one."

"I'll remember this, Elmendorf," said Alden.

"It's a gift," replied the detective. "As for that, you've paid me already with the information that you don't use a blotter. Good morning. I'll see you later in the day."

It may have been about half an hour afterward when he presented himself at the house where John Robinson lived and introduced himself to the landlady thereof, with the result that Mrs. Snags—I read a paragraph in the paper which said, "Woman was made before mirrors, but it wasn't her fault." Don't you think that is a mean remark to make about woman?

The landlady of the boarding house where Robinson lived said that he was somewhat irregular in his habits and that he did not always come home to dinner; but when at 2 o'clock in the morning it was reported that he had not appeared Captain Neale began to be uneasy. As he expressed it, "If Robinson has skipped, there'll be nothing doing."

Translated this meant that if a humble clerk of unknown antecedents had stained his soul with crime for $500 there remained only the profitless task of catching him and sending him to jail.

Elmendorf had no idea that Robinson had "skipped," principally because there was no apparent reason for it. The clerk had delivered the note to Elsie and had then left the house, as the testimony of the servant, a reliable woman long in Mrs. Simmons' employ, satisfactorily proved. That Robinson had immediately returned and committed the atrocious crime for a reward so small was, in Elmendorf's opinion, a wild hallucination, though he had heard such a hypothesis stated. But that Robinson's extreme agitation when brought to the scene was due to a more intimate knowledge of the affair than he had disclosed was a much more reasonable proposition.

As to the money in the note, Elmendorf was far from regarding it as the motive for the crime. He believed that the money had been there, for that was one of the few points upon which Elsie had made a positive declaration in her first response to questions, as Elmendorf had been informed by Kendall in their earliest interview at the hospital. She had said that she had removed the money and had laid it, with the note, upon the table. It had been stolen, but probably as a "blind," unless, indeed, some person connected with the police had comforted an itching palm with it.

Upon receiving his orders in regard to Robinson the detective went down to the building in which Alden's offices were situated. He took up an inconspicuous position near by and after half an hour of waiting had the pleasure of wishing Mr. Robinson good morning upon the sidewalk at a point about one hundred feet from the building. This was unfortunate for Captain Neale's man, Barnes, who was waiting in the doorway.

Elmendorf made no secret of his identity or of his errand, and Robinson seemed quite undisturbed.

"I was pretty badly upset yesterday afternoon," he said. "It was all so sudden and shocking. Of course I had no special interest in Miss Miller. Probably I haven't seen her more than three or four times in my life. But to think that this should have happened so soon after I had left her! I tell you it gave me a turn. I didn't feel much like being alone, so I went to see fellow whom I know and spent the night in his rooms. How is Miss Miller this evening?"

Elmendorf replied that his advices were altogether favorable, and little more was said until they had entered Alden's private office, in which Robinson had a desk.

"I thought you knew Miss Miller quite well," said Elmendorf, taking a chair. "You spoke of her by her first name yesterday."

"Did I?" said Robinson, opening his eyes wide. "Well, I might have said almost anything yesterday. I was nervous, and that's a fact."

"How did it happen that you took the note?"

"Why, Mr. Alden was going to ring for a messenger boy," was the reply, "and then he mentioned that there was money in the note and asked me about one of our own boys, who happened to be out at the time. So I said I'd take the note. I wanted to go up to my room, and it's only a little way from where Miss Miller lived. I hadn't anything particular to do at the time."

"What did you want to go to your room for?"

"To get a letter I had left there," replied Robinson. "Nothing of great importance."

"Came for you in the morning, I suppose, and you forgot to bring it down," said Elmendorf, with the air of one

The VALUE of LOVE IN A PLAY

By... VIOLA ALLEN

HERE IS NO SINGLE FEATURE OF A PLAY WHICH SO MAKES OR MARS FOR SUCCESS AS A PRETTY LOVE SCENE.

It is as important to the drama proper as a good tune which anybody can whistle is to a musical comedy or a thrilling, soul stirring climax to a melodrama. A PLAY WITHOUT A LOVE SCENE OR WITHOUT SOME SITUATION OR SERIES OF SITUATIONS IN WHICH THE ATTRACTION OF WOMAN FOR MAN WAS NOT DISPLAYED WOULD BE AN ANOMALY AND NINETY TIMES OUT OF A HUNDRED WOULD NOT BE TOLERATED BY AN AUDIENCE. This, of course, does not apply to tremendous tragedies, historical dramas or dramatic compositions in which the other deep passions of the soul are depicted. It is possible to have a piece from which love is tabooed. The experiment has been tried time and time again by playwrights, and a few successes have been attained. But in the main even in tragedies and historical plays the absence of the love element dooms the affair to failure. Probably the reason why the majestic tragedy of "Lear" has never made a permanent impression upon the theater going world is due to this cause. It turns upon filial ingratitude and is one of the strongest dramas ever written, but it does not and cannot appeal to the heart.

Emerson says that all the world loves a lover, and this neat epigram applies as much to audiences as to the public at large. A little book was once published entitled "How Men Propose," and it ran through I do not know how many editions. It is the same with audiences. THEY ENJOY SEEING HOW LOVE IS MADE. They take delight in the playwright's conception of the fact and the player's interpretation. It matters not whether the spectator is old or young, rich or poor, a bachelor or ten times married, he takes an invariable interest in the presentation of the tender passion.

"I think that was what I went to my room for."

CHAPTER X.

"CLARENCE."

ALDEN looked years younger than yesterday. His expression had lost much of its painful concentration and intensity, though a shrewd man might say he was still under the domination of a single thought.

"Such splendid news at the hospital," said he, "that I ventured down here for a few minutes. I can see her this afternoon, Jack," he added, addressing Robinson, "you'll have to look out for my mail for the next few days. I shall be at St. Winifred's all the time, or at the house next door on the west. Any news this morning, Mr. Elmendorf?"

"No," replied the detective. "I came down to have a little talk with Mr.

Robinson, but as neither of us knows anything the result was not important. By the way, can I write a note at your desk?"

Alden was just raising the lid.

"Certainly," said he, and Elmendorf sat down and wrote fast with a sputtering pen.

"I don't see any blotter here," he said, when the pen stopped scratching.

"Never use one," rejoined Alden; "I don't have time. There's a pad, but I never blot anything on it."

"You don't spill as much ink as I do," said Elmendorf, "except on your signature. You write that black enough."

"Habit of mine," replied Alden. "How do you happen to know anything about it?"

"I saw the note you wrote yesterday."

Alden flushed.

"I couldn't help it," said Elmendorf hastily. "And let me tell you that I'm greatly mistaken if the result of my seeing it isn't very important."

"In what way?"

Elmendorf begged to be excused from giving an immediate answer, and Alden did not insist.

"This 'making trouble' that you mentioned last evening," he said, "is getting its work in this morning. I am shadowed by the most conspicuous man in Greater New York. Every time he fancies that I have forgotten his presence he barks like a dog and remarks to every one who will listen that the grip is worst in hot weather."

Elmendorf glanced at Alden with an anxious eye. He seemed to have something on his mind, but he said only: "I'm surprised. There are shadows on the force who can't be picked out so easily."

Alden regarded him intently over the top of the desk upon which he was leaning.

"See if I've got any more letters outside, Jack," he said and added when Robinson had left the room, "Do you mean to say there's another one?"

"Sure," returned Elmendorf, "one for trouble and one for business. I don't know why I tell you these things, except that I hate Neale. He wants to know where you were yesterday, and he thinks you'll go there again. He expects you to throw the man with the grip and never notice the other one."

"I'll remember this, Elmendorf," said Alden.

"It's a gift," replied the detective. "As for that, you've paid me already with the information that you don't use a blower. Good morning. I'll see you later in the day."

It may have been about half an hour afterward when he presented himself at the house where John Robinson lived and introduced himself to the landlady thereof, with the result that

LATE AND IMPORTANT PHASES OF CHILD STUDY.

BY COLIN A. SCOTT, PH. D.,
Professor of Psychology and Child Study
in the Wisconsin Normal School.

VIII.—Nascent Periods; Doll Play.

WIOTHOUT the example and the suggestion of others few girls would play doll, but without a native impulse of some kind the example and suggestion would fall on barren ground. Where these two forces meet and fructify we have the nascent period for doll play. The doll is for the child mainly a means of representation. It affords him an opportunity for imitation and thus of realization of experience which could not otherwise be obtained. Mr. Ellis shows that within the doll period solid dolls are preferred at the beginning, but toward the end of the period paper dolls are much more in demand. The facts show that these latter are desired, among other reasons, because they are easier of manipulation. They may be manufactured quickly, and a greater number may be used. These features appear to be advantageous because by means of them more complex representations can be carried out.

It has been customary for adults to refer the girl's doll play to the instinct of motherhood. Dr. Harris repeats this notion and says that girls give up playing with dolls when they do because of the approach of puberty and with it the emotion of shame. The girl begins to feel the unsatisfactoriness of a mere symbol of a baby because she is able to desire more intensely the reality.

But as Mr. Ellis' carefully collated observations show, girls play all kinds of things besides mother and baby with dolls. Cross teacher is a favorite game. Actual dolls are not absolutely necessary. A row of buttons will do for the children and a bigger one for the teacher. At other times the child uses herself or other children, animals, etc., for some of the characters. This turns into forms where dolls are dispensed with.

Any event which is striking to the child is represented by means of dolls. Sickness, death and funerals are very common. The problems of the future life are not neglected. After being killed and buried, dolls are dug up to see if they have gone to heaven. President Stanley Hall gives a case where children had tied one big doll to the gaseler. This doll was called the god doll. When their other dolls died, they were given one toss upward. If they touched the god doll, they went to heaven; if not, they went to the other place. Dolls are by no means always babies. They are quite frequently about the same age as the person who plays with them and are often supposed to be grown up. Colored dolls are also frequent with white children and militate against the exclusiveness of the motherhood idea.

The range of complexity of the matters represented by means of dolls is only limited by the experience and imagination of the children. The present writer collected a number of plays with dolls, which are very significant for the educator. The following may be cited as an example: Children of about the age of 9 used to play doll in an attic, especially on rainy days. Here they had a number of stands and tables. On one of these they had black dolls cut out of paper. This was Africa. On another they had Chinese dolls painted with gayly colored clothing. From their parents they obtained tea and rice, which were laid on the table. On another stand they had tattooed savages, representing south sea islanders. They made ships of paper and carried the products of one country to another. Missionaries landed on the south sea islands and were duly killed and eaten up. They read all they could about these countries and wearied their parents with questions. During all this time they never once thought of asking their teacher for information, although she was teaching geography at the time. She was occupied largely with the definition of continents, islands, etc. She also concerned herself much with the boundaries of states and their capitals. As for the geography and history, the economics, the literature and the art work involved in the children's doll play, these were not shown on her course of study. The children showed ordinary common sense in not going to her for information or for help.

Children's doll play reveals almost everything they are thinking about. They whisper secrets to them; they show by their treatment of them their real feelings as to right and wrong, justice, punishments, etc. By means of them they objectify their own inner states and make internal their outer observations. This is all done in the most concrete manner possible. It is no abstract representation. Movements and bodily feelings are called into play as well as reactions of a more intellectual order. Doll play, in fact, from a brain standpoint, is a means of transition from the preponderant activity of the kinesthetic regions, connected with the bodily movements and feelings characteristic of the earlier years to that of the associational regions necessary for complete human development.

Doll play thus means the coming in of wide trains of imaging, which at first are not easily controlled without some other sensation. The child puts a big button down for the cross teacher. The imagination paints this figure for a little while and then goes on to the smaller buttons. The child is now free to pay complete attention in this direction. If the buttons were not there, it would happen at this stage, with a narrow memory span, that the first image or train of images about the teacher would be forgotten.

But now, coming to the end of the second train of images, she sees the big button before her eyes. She is immediately brought back to the first image and can go on with it, modifying it in every direction. The buttons have been the means of her organizing or holding together a larger range of images or of increasing her power to pay attention or to grasp a wide assemblage of events. This synthesizing power is essential in a properly developed human being, and the long period of childhood would be an advantage in the struggle for existence if this alone were gained.

It may be said that the teacher, when she braces her pupils in their seats, suppresses every movement and focuses attention to the minutest circle possible, is attempting to do something of the same kind. This may be possible in the upper grades, but within the nascent period for doll play nature has a better way. She begins with the movements and bodily sensations and out of them develops somewhat irregularly and by fits and starts the higher associational centers, which means the manipulation of wider trains of images. Always some of the dolls or buttons are kept in motion and are being constantly felt and handled as well as seen and thought about. If there are gaps in the train of images, as is natural, these are filled up with movements and bodily sensations. There is then the largest possible synthesis, since all these things are connected in one experience and not divided as in ordinary recitations. The personal perception of the body, which means sensation, will power, health and energy, is not sacrificed. Automatisms and other signs of fatigue do not appear. Double personality is not encouraged. The intellectual imaging is carried on the surface of a healthy emotional condition. Growth is made possible, since the roots as well as the leaves are allowed to live.

These partial experiences are made much more complete when they are acted out, but since many of these require also the co-operation of others, which is not obtainable when needed, a substitute is found which is controllable—namely, representation in miniature by means of dolls. The irritating desires caused by or identical with these dammed up images are thus radiated and discharged. Doll play is a movement toward a more complete experience, and it succeeds because it does not suppress, but liberates and synthesizes, energy.

In its more general aspects it is, of course, evident that doll play is simply typical of many other forms of play into which the intellectual and social element enters to any extent.

A complete psychological history of the child would give us a detailed account of thousands of such nascent periods as those already mentioned. They would overlap one another in every imaginable way, as they actually do in life. Their discovery and analysis would give us the keys by which we could bring to bear at the proper time the most suitable environment for the mental and moral nutrition of the child. Time would be saved and injury avoided, for we would no longer be in danger of working on immature capacities nor of neglecting others until their period of growth has passed by forever. What an advantage, for example, it would be if instead of needing to support a compulsory education department we had a child study account of this problem of truancy and vagabondage which would reveal its nascent period and display the desires and images which make up the mental condition of the truant, the signs by which these are indicated and the means by which they may be radiated and discharged or made part of a completer form of living.

The child of the present day and the savage child were probably alike in

PEACE OUTLOOK DARK

Holland's Proposal to England May Have Been Rejected.

DID BOERS INSPIRE OFFER?

Not Believed Dutch Premier Would Have Acted, Unless He Had Assurance the South Africans Would Agree to a Settlement.

London, Jan. 29.—The government leader, A. J. Balfour, announced in the house of commons that no overtures for peace had been received from any one authorized to speak in behalf of the Boers. A communication was, however, received late on Saturday last from the Dutch government, which is under consideration, and Mr. Balfour hoped shortly to lay the communication and the reply to it before the house.

London, Jan. 29.—The announcement of Mr. Balfour caused a sensation in the lobbies of parliament. Lord Rosebery is generally credited with having brought about this movement on the part of the Dutch government.

It is recalled that Mr. Kuyper, the Dutch premier, in an interview published about Christmas time, was represented to have urged the impossibility of Holland's intervening in South Africa unless she had reason to think that both parties wished it. Consequently it is regarded as certain that the present move was inspired by the Boer delegates.

The Petit Bleu, of Brussels, the organ of the Krugerites, flatly denied last night that the Boer delegates had charged any one to make peace proposals, and professed to be in entire ignorance of the Dutch communication.

DO YOU SEE THE SHARK AND DEVILFISH?

Claims Leyds Inspired It.

The Hague correspondent of The Daily Mail claims to have ascertained that Dr. Leyds inspired the Dutch foreign secretary, who was further advised by Prof. Asser, the international jurist, and adds that Dr. Leyds, the European representative of the Transvaal, is apparently attempting to draw Mr. Chamberlain, the British colonial secretary, to disclose the terms conditional upon the waiving of independence.

This was the impression in the lobbies as a result of the announcement of the government leader and semi-official statements in government journals this morning declare the outlook for peace not hopeful.

The Daily News this morning claims credit for the initiation of the peace movement.

Editorially, The Daily News draws the inference that the government already replied, and has rejected the Dutch overtures as unauthorized, as otherwise Mr. Balfour would not have been in a position to promise the papers on the subject, this promise showing that no further negotiations were afoot.

This was the impression in the lobbies as a result of the announcement of the government leader and semi-official statements in government journals this morning declare the outlook for peace not hopeful.

LATE AND IMPORTANT PHASES OF CHILD STUDY.

BY COLIN A. SCOTT, PH. D.,
Professor of Psychology and Child Study
in the Wisconsin Normal School.

VIII.—Nascent Periods; Doll Play.

WHICHOUT the example and the suggestion of others few girls would play doll, but without a native impulse of some kind the example and suggestion would fall on barren ground. Where these two forces meet and fructify we have the nascent period for doll play. The doll is for the child mainly a means of representation. It affords him an opportunity for imitation and thus of realization of experience which could not otherwise be obtained. Mr. Ellis shows that within the doll period solid dolls are preferred at the beginning, but toward the end of the period paper dolls are much more in demand. The facts show that these latter are desired, among other reasons, because they are easier of manipulation. They may be manufactured quickly, and a greater number may be used. These features appear to be advantageous because by means of them more complex representations can be carried out.

It has been customary for adults to refer the girl's doll play to the instinct of motherhood. Dr. Harris repeats this notion and says that girls give up playing with dolls when they do because of the approach of puberty and with it the emotion of shame. The girl begins to feel the unsatisfactoriness of a mere symbol of a baby because she is able to desire more intensely the reality.

But as Mr. Ellis carefully collated observations show, girls play all kinds of things besides mother and baby with dolls. Cross teacher is a favorite game. Actual dolls are not absolutely necessary. A row of buttons will do for the children and a bigger one for the teacher. At other times the child uses herself or other children, animals, etc., for some of the characters. This runs into forms where dolls are dispensed with.

Any event which is striking to the child is represented by means of dolls. Sicknes, death and funerals are very common. The problems of the future life are not neglected. After being killed and buried, dolls are dug up to see if they have gone to heaven. President Stanley Hall gives a case where children had tied one big doll to the gunner. This doll was called the god doll. When their other dolls died, they were given one toss upward. If they touched the god doll, they went to heaven; if not, they went to the other place. Dolls are by no means always babies. They are quite frequent about the same age as the person who plays with them and are often supposed to be grown up. Colored dolls are also frequent with white children and militate against the exclusiveness of the motherhood idea.

The range of complexity of the matters represented by means of dolls is only limited by the experience and imagination of the children. The present writer collected a number of plays with dolls, which are very significant for the educator. The following may be cited as an example: Children of about the age of 9 used to play doll in an attic, especially on rainy days. Here they had a number of stands and tables. On one of these they had black dolls cut out of paper. This was Africa. On another they had Chinese dolls painted with gayly colored clothing. From their parents they obtained tea and rice, which were laid on the table. On another stand they had tattooed savages, representing south sea islanders. They made ships of paper and carried the products of one country to another. Missionaries landed on the south sea islands and were duly killed and eaten up. They read all they could about these countries and wearied their parents with questions. During all this time they never once thought of asking their teacher for information, although she was teaching geography at the time. She was occupied largely with the definition of continents, islands, etc. She also concerned herself much with the boundaries of states and their capitals. As for the geography and history, the economics, the literature and the art work involved in the children's doll play, these were not shown on her course of study. The children showed ordinary common sense in not going to her for information or for help.

Children's doll play reveals almost everything they are thinking about. They whisper secrets to them; they show by their treatment of them their real feelings as to right and wrong, justice, punishments, etc. By means of them they objectify their own inner states and make internal their outer observations. This is all done in the most concrete manner possible. It is no abstract representation. Movements and bodily feelings are called into play as reactions of a more intellectual order. Doll play, in fact, from a brain standpoint, is a means of transition from the preponderant activity of the kinesthetic regions, connected with the bodily movements and feelings characteristic of the earlier years to that of the associational regions necessary for complete human development.

Doll play thus means the coming in of wide trains of imaging, which at first are not easily controlled without some other sensation. The child puts a big button down for the cross teacher. The imagination paints this figure for a little while and then goes on to the smaller buttons. The child is now free to pay complete attention in this direction. If the buttons were not there, it would happen at this stage, with a narrow memory span, that the first image or train of images about the teacher would be forgotten.

But now, coming to the end of the second train of images, she sees the big button before her eyes. She is immediately brought back to the first image and can go on with it, modifying it in every direction. The buttons have been the means of her organizing or holding together a larger range of images or of increasing her power to pay attention or to grasp a wide assemblage of events. This synthesizing power is essential in a properly developed human being, and the long period of childhood would be an advantage in the struggle for existence if this alone were gained.

It may be said that the teacher, when she braces her pupils in their seats, suppresses every movement and focuses attention to the minutest circle possible, attempting to do something of the same kind. This may be possible in the upper grades, but within the nascent period for doll play nature has a better way. She begins with the movements and bodily sensations and out of them develops somewhat irregularly and by fits and starts the higher associational centers, which means the manipulation of wider trains of images. Always some of the dolls or buttons are kept in motion and are being constantly felt and handled as well as seen and thought about. If there are gaps in the train of images, as is natural, these are filled up with movements and bodily sensations. There is then the largest possible synthesis, since all these things are connected in one experience and not divided as in ordinary recitations. The personal perception of the body, which means sensation, will power, health and energy, is not sacrificed. Automatisms and other signs of fatigue do not appear. Double personality is not encouraged. The intellectual imaging is carried on the surface of a healthy emotional condition. Growth is made possible, since the roots as well as the leaves are allowed to live.

These partial experiences are made much more complete when they are acted out, but since many of these require also the co-operation of others, which is not obtainable when needed, a substitute is found which is controllable—namely, representation in miniature by means of dolls. The irritating desires caused by or identical with these dammed up images are thus radiated and discharged. Doll play is a movement toward a more complete experience, and it succeeds because it does not suppress, but liberates and synthesizes, energy.

In its more general aspects it is, of course, evident that doll play is simply typical of many other forms of play into which the intellectual and social element enters to any extent.

A complete psychological history of the child would give us a detailed account of thousands of such nascent periods as those already mentioned. They would overlap one another in every imaginable way, as they actually do in life. Their discovery and analysis would give us the keys by which we could bring to bear at the proper time the most suitable environment for the mental and moral nutrition of the child. Time would be saved and injury avoided, for we would no longer be in danger of working on immature capacities nor of neglecting others until their period of growth has passed by forever. What an advantage, for example, it would be if instead of needing to support a compulsory education department we had a child study account of this problem of truancy and vagabondage which would reveal its nascent period and display the desires and images which make up the mental condition of the truant, by which these are indicated and the means by which they may be radiated and discharged or made part of a complete form of living.

PEACE OUTLOOK DARK

Holland's Proposal to England May Have Been Rejected.

DID BOERS INSPIRE OFFER?

Not Believed Dutch Premier Would Have Acted, Unless He Had Assurance the South Africans Would Agree to a Settlement.

London, Jan. 29.—The government leader, A. J. Balfour, announced in the house of commons that no overtures for peace had been received from any one authorized to speak in behalf of the Boers. A communication was, however, received late on Saturday last from the Dutch government, which is under consideration, and Mr. Balfour hoped shortly to lay the communication and the reply to it before the house.

London, Jan. 29.—The announcement of Mr. Balfour caused a sensation in the lobbies of parliament. Lord Rosebery is generally credited with having brought about this movement on the part of the Dutch government.

It is recalled that Mr. Kuyper, the Dutch premier, in an interview published about Christmas time, was represented to have urged the impossibility of Holland's intervening in South Africa unless she had reason to think that both parties wished it. Consequently it is regarded as certain that the present move was inspired by the Boer delegates.

The Petit Bleu, of Brussels, the organ of the Krugerites, flatly denied last night that the Boer delegates had one respect—they were both most thoroughly impressed each by his own environment. It takes very little sense of proportion to see that the modern home is to the modern child what the ancient wigwam was to the savage child. The child of the stone age did not probably hanker after a period 500,000 years before his time. Why should the modern child do so either?

The theory is really a piece of mysticism and derived from a course of study standpoint rather than from the natural interests of the child. This is not, however, saying that children have no interest in history nor that building wigwams, making pottery, etc., are not a great improvement on what formerly occupied the ground. These occupations are after all a form of play. The difficulty is that they have half the life taken out of them by being predestined by the teacher. By this conduct the teacher robs the children of a considerable part of the motor side of life and lessens their opportunities for finding themselves a cause. Moreover, by compelling some children to make pottery, e. g., who would rather do something else she also loses that variety which is essential to any concrete realization of life or satisfactory organization of society.

BONUS SILVER SEIZED.

Counterfeit Coins Causing Trouble at Ponce—Expert Sent For.

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Jan. 29.—Governor Hunt has cabled to the treasury department at Washington asking that an expert be sent here to settle the counterfeit question at Ponce, where $3,000 in bogus silver was recently seized. Business there is practically suspended. The merchants are refusing to accept any silver coins of the dates of 1898, 1899, 1900 and 1901. The counterfeit dollars are poorly executed, but the alleged spurious halves and quarters defy detection. They are apparently of the full weight. The bankers here have examined samples of the silver from Ponce and say the coins are good. There are no experts here or at Ponce.

The chamber of commerce met yesterday and resolved to accept all apparently good silver until the arrival of the treasury agents.

Sentenced For Peculiar Crime.

Hollidaysburg, Pa., Jan. 29.—Anthony Zelliop and Anton Novitzki, two Hungarians, were sentenced in court to imprisonment of one year and seven months each in the penitentiary. The men blamed John Dell for opening their mail and pursued him to the banks of the Juniata river. Dell jumped into the river to escape them and was drowned. The crime was committed in December last.

DO YOU SEE THE SHARK AND DEVILFISH?

The Daily News this morning claims credit for the initiation of the peace movement.

Editorially, The Daily News draws the inference that the government already replied, and has rejected the Dutch overtures as unauthorized, as otherwise Mr. Balfour would not have been in a position to promise the papers on the subject, this promise showing that no further negotiations were afoot.

This was the impression in the lobby as a result of the announcement of the government leader and semi-official statements in government journals this morning declare the outlook for peace not hopeful.

A FINE CARD PARTY

UNIQUE ENTERTAINMENT AT MRS. L. W. HEALY'S HOME.

About 85 Ladies Enjoyed Her Hospitality—Decorations And Favors Unique.

One of the most beautiful events which has occurred in East Liverpool social circles this season was the card party given by Mrs. Louis W. Healy yesterday afternoon at her home in Thompson place.

The Healy residence was beautifully decorated, preference being given to yellow and white. The hall was especially pretty. Here, as everywhere, the color scheme was much in evidence. The doors leading into the several rooms were festooned in yellow and white crepe paper, caught back to form curtains. Up and down the stairs spruce and pine were used as the decoration, and on the railing large butterflies of crepe paper were used, the yellow and white alternating.

The figure at the beginning of the stairway was dressed in a red and yellow gown and looked quite pretty, as she supported the incandescent lights, which were covered with pretty paper shades.

Progressive euchre and caroms were played. Pretty little bags made of crepe paper in the two predominating colors and with a slip designating the table, etc., were given to each lady. Each time a game was won, the lucky person received a tiny favor. At the conclusion of the game the guests all received favors in which were found artistic caps in various colors. Mrs. Jason H. Brookes won the first prize at euchre—a pretty picture; while Mrs. Jessie Smith won a pretty gold clock—prize at caroms.

The refreshments were very dainty. The cream was in various figures and the cake and confections in yellow and white. Nowling's orchestra imparted sweet strains throughout the afternoon.

Mrs. Healy was assisted in the dining room by the following ladies: Mrs. Tom Anderson, Mrs. Alf Kelly, Mrs. F. H. Croxall, Miss Hull, Miss Luale Jones and Anna Myers.

Each of the above ladies wore a dress made of crepe paper in the two shades chosen for the occasion, and each wore her hair done up in old style and powdered. The effect was most charming.

Two little girls, Olive Kerr and Jessie Murphy, also assisted the hostess at the door and upstairs. They wore paper dresses in yellow and white respectively.

Mrs. Healy was assisted in receiving by Miss May Hull, of Scranton, Pa., and Miss Hull, of Wheeling, W. Va. Each of these ladies wore pretty white dresses, as did the hostess.

About 85 ladies were in attendance and enjoyed the hospitality of a very charming home.

At 7 o'clock Mrs. Healy gave a dinner to her aids, their husbands and gentlemen friends. Covers were laid for 24. The affair was quite elaborate and was a pretty finale to a very delightful afternoon's entertainment.

HOW THE CHINESE GET RAIN

Peculiar Practices In Vogue In the Celestial Kingdom.

It is one of the peculiarities of the Chinese that, while they have developed elaborate philosophies, none of them has led to any confidence in the uniformity of nature. Neither the people nor their rulers have any fixed opinion as to the causes of rainfall. The plan in some provinces when the need of rain is felt is to borrow a god from a neighboring district and petition him for the desired rain. If his answer is satisfactory, he is returned to his home with every mark of honor; otherwise he may be put out in the sun as a bribe to wake up and do his duty. A bunch of willow is usually thrust into his hand, as willow is sensitive to moisture.

Another plan in extensive use is the building of special temples in which are wells containing several iron tablets. When there is a scarcity of rain, a messenger starts out with a tablet marked with the date of the journey and the name of the district making the petition. Arriving at another city, he pays a sum of money and is allowed to draw a new tablet from the well, throwing in his own by way of exchange. On the return journey he is supposed to eat only bran and travel at top speed day and night. Sometimes he passes through districts as greatly in need of rain as his own. Then the people in these places waylay him and, temporarily borrowing his tablet, get the rain intended for another place.

Prayers are usually made in the fifth and sixth months when the rainfall is always due, and a limit of ten days is set for their effective operation. Under such conditions rain usually falls during the prescribed time. When the prayers are in progress, the umbrella, among other objects, comes under the ban. In some provinces foreigners have been mobbed for carrying this harmless article at that time.

The Way This Poison Acts Upon the Human System.

When a single dose of arsenic in sufficient quantity to be felt has been taken, colicky pains, bowel disorder and perhaps nausea result. In the course of an hour after a poisonous dose has been taken an intense burning pain is felt in the esophagus and stomach. This spreads to the entire anterior portion of the lower part of the trunk. A sense of constriction at the throat and an acrid, metallic taste accompany the pain. Then vomiting and relaxation of the bowels begin. As the case progresses the symptoms increase in intensity. Then comes a thirst that water will not allay, although it apparently increases the stomach disturbance. The victim groans and writhes.

The general outlook in Batangas province is decidedly favorable.

A party of insurgents, led by two renegades Americans, recently entered Alangalang, in Leyte province, claiming they were constabulary, but not yet uniformed. The impostors were taken to police headquarters and were royally entertained by the native sergeant in charge. At a given signal the renegades and insurgents fell on the police, who, though outnumbered more than 2 to 1, fought desperately and drove off their assailants after a hand-to-hand fight, in which bolos were the chief weapons.

The victory was notable, as the police were completely surprised and so outnumbered. They lost two men killed and had one man wounded. The insurgents left one man dead.

December's Names.

December, so called from being the tenth month when the year began in March, has probably had more names conferred upon it than any other of the twelve into which our year is now divided. Among the early Saxons it was called Winter Monat, or winter month.

After their conversion to Christianity they called it Heilige Monat, or holy month, in honor of the birth of Christ. In later days in Germany it was called Christ Monat, or Christmas month.

Fires used to be lighted for warmth in this month, and the want of chimneys used to cause a too obvious inconvenience, which led to its being called Funemosus, or smoky. It was also dubbed Canus, or hoary, from the snows or hoarfrosts which then generally whitened the higher grounds.

SCHLEY REACHED LOUISVILLE

On Way From Chicago, Admiral's Right Hand Was Badly Overworked.

Louisville, Jan. 29.—Rear Admiral Schley, who, under the chaperonage of the board of trade and the Knights Templar, will be Louisville's guest until Friday next, arrived here over the Monon road at 7:15 o'clock last evening. He was greeted by an admiral's salute and a shouting crowd of many hundreds at the depot.

The trip from Chicago was one long ovation, and so vigorous were some of the handclaps which the distinguished seaman received en route that his right hand was nearly "out of business," as the admiral explained. He begged the sub-committee of the Louisville reception committee, which met him at Salem, Ind., to handle it with care.

The admiral made no speeches on the trip, although at some of the stops he spoke a few words of greeting. Telegrams from every station along the line, many of them stating that the schools had been closed to allow the children to see the admiral, were received. They asked that the admiral appear on the platform, if only for a moment.

At many points the best that General Superintendent Lowell, of the Monon, who was in personal charge of the train, could do was to slacken speed, but the passenger for whom all were looking braved the cold to appear and bow. At Lafayette, Ind., he insisted that grimy-handed machinists, who had rushed from the car shops, take his hand. "Never mind the grease," he said, and the men, who had not wished to soil the admiral's gloves, cheered.

A public reception and a banquet are on the program for today, both being under the auspices of the board of trade. Thursday, as the guest of the Knights Templar, of which organization he is a member, the admiral will attend a reception and ball. Friday he will leave for Nashville, Tenn.

JOHN DIXON GRAFF SUICIDED

No Reason Known—Had Been Re lieved of His Place—Son of Late Thomas J. Graff.

Monongahela, Pa., Jan. 29.—John Dixon Graff, formerly manager of the Pittsburg Stove and Range company's plant here, shot himself through the head and died in a few minutes. No reason is known for his act other than he was superseded Monday by William Graham, who was sent from Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Jan. 29.—Mr. Graff was the eldest son of Thomas J. Graff, one of Pittsburg's pioneer stove manufacturers and who died in 1890. He learned the stove manufacturing business under his father, who was the head of the firm of Graff, Hugus & Co., and when the Pittsburg Stove and Range company was formed three years ago he took charge of its plant at Monongahela. He leaves a wife and three small children.

Nothing is known as to the circumstances of Mr. Graff's leaving his position. It was said yesterday morning by Mr. Graham, his successor, that Mr. Graff seemed to be in good spirits Monday.

Mr. Graff arose about 5 o'clock Tuesday morning and after descending to the front hall of his home shot himself with a revolver. Mrs. Graff heard the report and immediately summoned a physician by telephone. Before he arrived, however, Mr. Graff was dead.

Mr. Graff's mother resides at Shields, near Sewickley. Six brothers and a sister, Mrs. Murray, of Sewickley, also survive him. One brother, H. L. Graff, is the president of the firm of Graff & Co., of this city. Mr. Graff was 37 years old.

A FINE CARD PARTY

UNIQUE ENTERTAINMENT AT MRS. L. W. HEALY'S HOME.

About 85 Ladies Enjoyed Her Hospitality—Decorations And Favors Unique.

One of the most beautiful events which has occurred in East Liverpool social circles this season was the card party given by Mrs. Louis W. Healy yesterday afternoon at her home in Thompson place.

The Healy residence was beautifully decorated, preference being given to yellow and white. The hall was especially pretty. Here, as everywhere, the color scheme was much in evidence. The doors leading into the several rooms were festooned in yellow and white crepe paper, caught back to form curtains. Up and down the stairs spruce and pine were used as the decoration, and on the railing large butterflies of crepe paper were used, the yellow and white alternating. The figure at the beginning of the stairway was dressed in a red and yellow gown and looked quite pretty, as she supported the incandescent lights, which were covered with pretty paper shades.

Progressive euchre and caroms were played. Pretty little bags made of crepe paper in the two predominating colors and with a slip designating the table, etc., were given to each lady. Each time a game was won, the lucky person received a tiny favor. At the conclusion of the game the guests all received favors in which were found artistic caps in various colors. Mrs. Jason H. Brookes won the first prize at euchre—a pretty picture; while Mrs. Jessie Smith won a pretty gold clock—prize at caroms.

The refreshments were very dainty. The cream was in various figures and the cake and confections in yellow and white. Nowling's orchestra imparted sweet strains throughout the afternoon.

Mrs. Healy was assisted in the dining room by the following ladies: Mrs. Tom Anderson, Mrs. Alf Kelly, Mrs. F. H. Croxall, Miss Hull, Miss Luale Jones and Anna Myers.

Each of the above ladies wore a dress made of crepe paper in the two shades chosen for the occasion, and each wore her hair done up in old style and powdered. The effect was most charming.

Two little girls, Olive Kerr and Jessie Murphy, also assisted the hostess at the door and upstairs. They wore paper dresses in yellow and white respectively.

Mrs. Healy was assisted in receiving by Miss May Hull, of Scranton, Pa., and Miss Hull, of Wheeling, W. Va. Each of these ladies wore pretty white dresses, as did the hostess.

About 85 ladies were in attendance and enjoyed the hospitality of a very charming home.

At 7 o'clock Mrs. Healy gave a dinner to her aids, their husbands and gentlemen friends. Covers were laid for 24. The affair was quite elaborate and was a pretty finale to a very delightful afternoon's entertainment.

AMONG THE SCHOOLS

Miss Lizzie Griggs, principal of the Third street school, is back at work again after illness.

Mrs. Clemens, a teacher at Grant street, was absent from her duties on Monday by reason of illness.

Miss Alma Croxall, a teacher in the public schools, who was ill, is again attending to her regular duties.

Miss L. Godden Barker, a specialist in drawing, addressed the grade teachers yesterday on the subject of "Drawing in the Public Schools."

A teachers' meeting attended by all instructors under the jurisdiction of the local board of education was held at the Central school building last evening.

CALL AT THE NEWS REVIEW OFFICE FOR CANDIDATES' CARDS.HOW THE CHINESE GET RAIN*Peculiar Practices In Vogue In the Celestial Kingdom.

It is one of the peculiarities of the Chinese that, while they have developed elaborate philosophies, none of them has led to any confidence in the uniformity of nature. Neither the people nor their rulers have any fixed opinion as to the causes of rainfall. The plan in some provinces when the need of rain is felt is to borrow a god from a neighboring district and petition him for the desired rain. If his answer is satisfactory, he is returned to his home with every mark of honor; otherwise he may be put out in the sun as a hint to wake up and do his duty. A bunch of willow is usually thrust into his hand, as willow is sensitive to moisture.

Another plan in extensive use is the building of special temples in which are wells containing several iron tablets. When there is a scarcity of rain, a messenger starts out with a tablet marked with the date of the journey and the name of the district making the petition. Arriving at another city, he pays a sum of money and is allowed to draw a new tablet from the well, throwing in his own by way of exchange. On the return journey he is supposed to eat only bran and travel at top speed day and night. Sometimes he passes through districts as greatly in need of rain as his own. Then the people in these places waylay him and, temporarily borrowing his tablet, get the rain intended for another place.

Prayers are usually made in the fifth and sixth months when the rainfall is always due, and a limit of ten days is set for their effective operation. Under such conditions rain usually falls during the prescribed time. When the prayers are in progress, the umbrella, among other objects, comes under the ban. In some provinces foreigners have been mobbed for carrying this harmless article at that time.

DEATH BY ARSENIC.The Way This Poison Acts Upon the Human System.

When a single dose of arsenic in sufficient quantity to be felt has been taken, colicky pains, bowel disorder and perhaps nausea result. In the course of an hour after a poisonous dose has been taken an intense burning pain is felt in the esophagus and stomach. This spreads to the entire anterior portion of the lower part of the trunk. A sense of constriction at the throat and an acrid, metallic taste accompany the pain. Then vomiting and relaxation of the bowels begin. As the case progresses the symptoms increase in intensity. Then comes a thirst that water will not allay, although it apparently increases the stomach disturbance. The victim groans and writhes.

Now he implores the doctor to save him. Then he begs to be killed and put out of pain. The extremities become icy. The pulse is small, feeble and frequent, and the breathing is labored, embarrassed and painful because of abdominal tenderness. The surface of the body becomes dark and of that bluish color that medical men call cyanosis. Violent cramps add their torture, exhaustion becomes collapse, convulsions or coma ensues, and death ends the agony. This torture lasts sometimes from five to twenty hours.

In some cases these symptoms occur, but in a modified form, and the doctor will apparently get the better of the disease. The remission will be but for a day or two. Then the abdomen will swell, and icy coldness will pervade the frame. Shivering will become pronounced trembling, then cramps, convulsions and death.

19TH YEAR. NO. 24.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 29, 1902.

TWO CENTS.

STRUCK A BRIDGE

Three tow boats struck the Beaver bridge at Beaver late last night, causing much loss to the Monongahela and coal combine. Five coal boats and one barge and one flat are lying in the bottom of the river as result of the accidents.

Shortly after 10 o'clock last night a telephone message was received at Georgetown from Merri dam, asking persons there to take a lookout for stray property. All night a watch was kept, but no coal boats, barges or flats came past. The Fred Wilson was the first boat to strike the bridge, and in so doing three coal boats and a yawl were destroyed. This accident was followed by the Josh Cook, which lost one barge and one flat in the same manner. The Tom Reese also struck the bridge and lost two coal boats.

As soon as the accidents became known to the officials of the combine, messages were sent to all towns along the river asking that a watch be kept for stray craft, but this morning wharfmaster Gus Martindill said nothing was seen floating past this city. The Tom Reese tied to the shore just below Jethro during the night, where repairs were made to the damaged barges in the tow and left for the south about 10 o'clock. The Clifton, on its up trip this morning, stopped at the wharf boat, from where the captain telephoned to Pittsburg, receiving instructions to assist the disabled boats. The Clifton passed down for New Cumberland last evening, where its tow was delivered to another boat.

The river at this port today registered 13 feet and falling. The Queen City will be down this evening for Cincinnati. Considerable ice is passing out, but it is not as heavy as yesterday.

After routine business was disposed of, an address was made by International Vice President H. J. Conway, of St. Louis. This was one of the most pleasant events of the evening and thoroughly enjoyed.

C. W. Powell, president of Wellsville local, spoke of the work being accomplished by the new local in that city. This was followed by an address by President David M. McLane, of Trades and Labor Council.

The following officers were then elected for the year:

NEAR A DISASTER

A landslide between here and Wellsville gave a street car filled with passengers an uncomfortably close call last evening about 8 o'clock. From some unknown cause a huge mass of earth and rocks, midway of the so-called mountain, fell to the street car track. That the 15 passengers, conductor and motorman on car No. 7, which was bound for Wellsville, did not meet death in a horrible manner is considered almost miraculous.

The car was in charge of Motorman Arthur Deville and, as is required on the down grades leading to the Walker switch, the car was running at a moderate rate of speed. However, with a terrible crash it bumped into the debris which covered the track. The shock, coming so abruptly, confusion reigned supreme among the passengers. They were thrown violently from their seats and in a moment, when the full realization of what might have happened occurred to them, a general scramble ensued, every one attempting to reach assured safety at the same time.

At the point where the slide occurred the roadway is very narrow and the embankment almost perpendicular, the distance being 100 feet to the bottom of the precipice. Had the car been running at full speed the fate of the passengers would have been sealed. As it was, all escaped unhurt and the only loss entailed by the accident fell to the lot of the railway company, the head light, bumper and window panes being demolished. As a result of the collision traffic was delayed for an hour and a half until the track was cleared.

SYMPOSIUM OF OPINIONS AS REGARDS REGISTRATION

Action Must Be Taken On the Matter Promptly If At All.

MANY ARE IN FAVOR OF IT

And Those Opposed Are So Mainly On the Score of the Expense.

ALL PARTIES ARE REPRESENTED

In the Interviews Given And the Majority Are Emphatic in Their Approval of the Proposition to Have the State Registration Law Here.

The bill providing for the extension of the registration laws to include East Liverpool has now been before the people for several days, and if it is to be enacted at this session of the legislature, steps along this line must be taken at once. With a view of securing the sentiment of the public respecting the proposed legislation, the News Review today obtained the opinions of men of all political parties with the following result:

Rev. Clark Crawford, D. D.—You cannot state too emphatically that I am in favor of registration. East Liverpool, a border city, needs it much more than some of the larger cities. Every good citizen should favor any measure that is calculated to prevent fraudulent voting. Registration laws are an important safeguard of this kind and we should have them.

George H. Owen—I am in favor of the measure and will do all my power to secure its passage.

M. E. Miskall—I have talked with a number of people from cities having registration and in all cases have heard the plan favorably spoken of. It would be a good thing for East Liverpool.

Dr. G. P. Ikirt—if the city has reached a point in its advancement where it thinks it can stand the additional expense, I believe it would be a good thing. The principle of the thing is all right.

George Peach—I do not think the people generally want registration. The expense involved is considerable, and we are not prepared at this time to stand it. If there is any crookedness in the manner of conducting our elections—and I do not believe there is—there are laws to punish the guilty ones.

J. C. Walsh—I am in favor of registration. It may be if the system is put in operation we will find more Democrats in the neighborhood.

Ed Cook—You can say I am very much in favor of the plan.

J. J. Weisend—Yes, registration would be a very excellent thing, and I favor it.

W. A. Weaver—I cannot see the necessity for it. I have visited the voting precincts on a number of occasions when elections were being held and I believe they were conducted as fairly as could be possible. I believe the election officers of East Liverpool to be honest men and I would not be in favor of adding to the outlay of the already overburdened taxpayer.

Mayor W. C. Davidson—The city ought to have it.

J. H. Burgess—it is a good thing, if not too expensive.

APPLICANTS HEARD

Nine Candidates for Postal Positions Are Taking Examinations Today.

A civil service examination for the position of carrier and clerk was conducted in the rooms of the National club this morning by local officers. Nine applicants competed. The result of the examination will not be made known for 30 days.

Will Visit Painters' Local.

M. P. Will Visit Painters' Local, national secretary treasurer of the Painters and Paper-hangers union, with headquarters at Layfayette, Ind., is expected to arrive in this city today. The gentleman is paying visits to a number of local organizations in this district.

EAST ENDPREPARING TO MOVE

Rev. J. R. Greene Will Assume Charge of Sharon Church in a Short Time.

Rev. J. R. Greene, for seven years pastor of the Second U. P. church, will move his mother and father to Sharon next week. Such was the announcement he made this morning.

Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Greene will leave for Valencia, Pa., where they will remain six weeks visiting relatives, after which they will go to Sharon, their former home.

Rev. Mr. Greene will take charge of the Sharon church one week from next Sunday. Next Sunday morning Dr. J. C. Taggart will preach in the East End church, and in the evening the pulpit will be occupied by Rev. Mr. Campbell, of Calcutta.

This evening, immediately after the prayer meeting service, an informal meeting of the session will be held to confer with Rev. Mr. Greene and future plans alighted over. Who will occupy the pulpit February 9 is not definitely known.

BIG IMPROVEMENTS

Soon to Be Made at the Stave And Saw Mill of Truman McCain.

More than $1,000 will be spent by Truman McCain in making improvements at his stave and saw mill near the power house. The business has increased so rapidly during the past year that the present machinery will have to be replaced at once. A new boiler and engine was ordered several months ago, but the boiler just arrived yesterday. This week the old boiler will be taken from the mill, and in its place a new and larger boiler will be installed.

The new engine is expected this week and will be placed in position upon its arrival. A new patent saw mill will also be installed at the mill which will do away with several old time saws now in use, and at the same time increase the output of the plant.

FAREWELL RECEPTION

To Be Given in Honor of Rev. J. R. Greene After Prayer Meeting Tonight.

Miss Margaret White entertained the members of the choir of the Second U. P. church and their friends in honor of Rev. J. R. Greene at her home on Ohio avenue last night. About 30 persons were present. Refreshments were served and the evening spent most pleasantly.

This evening after the prayer meeting service a farewell reception, given by the church members, will be held at the home of D. A. McIntosh, of River avenue, in honor of Rev. Mr.

Greene. The event promises to be largely attended.

Orchard Sold for $2,500.
In Georgetown yesterday eight acres of orchard land were sold. The property was owned by John Trimble and was bought by Mrs. Porter, of Georgetown. The consideration was $2,500. The property lies in the eastern part of the town, and the survey of the proposed New Cumberland extension is within a square of the property.

Great Revival Meeting.

The most profitable revival services that have ever been held in Glasgow, near Smith's Ferry, will close soon. These meetings, under the direction of Rev. Mr. Baum, have been conducted for several weeks, and up to last evening over 40 conversions have been reported. The attendance at each meeting has been large and the interest is growing steadily.

Dr. Marshall for Council.

While he will make no special effort, the friends of Dr. R. J. Marshall have decided to place his name on the ticket as a candidate for councilman from the Fifth ward. His name was given to the central committee yesterday.

Visits Rev. J. R. Greene.

Dr. George Cubbinson, of Beaver Falls, Pa., was in the East End yesterday visiting at the home of Rev. J. R. Greene. He was a classmate at Grove City, Pa., college with Rev. Mr. Greene.

Prof. Edwards and lady took advantage of the good sleighing Friday evening and took in the old fashioned spelling school at Azelida.

Mrs. Mary A. Feezel has been spending some time at the home of her daughter, Gertrude, Mrs. Stewart, in Natrona, Pa. A little daughter in the family was the occasion of Mrs. Feezel's prolonged stay.

Samuel Moore is quite ill.

"Squire" Moore and family spent Saturday evening at Orchard Grove.

Will Wright Jr., and John Hickman are managing the Gaston mill this winter.

Charles Lones and Miss Edith Moore attended the spelling match at Azelida.

Miss Ethel Moore, of Pleasant Heights, was a home visitor Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman, of Cannon's Mill, will move to the Matthew Warren farm Thursday.

Prof. Moore assisted in the music for the grand dance at the opera house, Columbian, Thursday.

Lodge Teller

debates is not frequent has been such a hurbitter vituperation of personal taunt, of ugly
charges and of unmodified criticism was witnessed yesterday. Not the discussion of the resolutions
leading up to the Hispano-American war have any scenes occurred in the Senate comparable with yesterday.
Even the debate lacked the personal bitterness manifested at times yesterday. Irritation was aroused on both sides of the chamber and once or twice personal encounters between senators seemed imminent. Once when Senator Teller taunted the Republican senators by declaring they knew the statements made in a recent dispatch from Manila, in which General Wheaton was reported as criticizing the opponents of the government's policy in the Philippines, were there a half dozen Republicans were on their feet in an instant. Senator Lodge, at whom the taunt seemed to be aimed particularly, hurriedly
crossed from his seat in the center
to the Republican side to the main aisle of the senate, and, white to the teeth, passionately challenged the statement of the Colorado senator,
and demanded that he withdraw it.
Senator Teller so modified the statement that further hostilities at that time were averted.

One of the sharpest colloquies of
the session was between Senators
Spooner, of Wisconsin, and Tillman,
of South Carolina. The race problem, involving the lynching of negroes,
was interjected into the controversy, and much feeling was manifested by both senators. In the course of the colloquy Mr. Spooner declared that if the same rule were to be applied to the colored people in the Philippines as Mr. Tillman referred to in the south, then "God help
the colored man in the Philippines."

"God help him in the Philippines," shouted the South Carolina senator, passionately. "You have already butchered in three years three times as many as the Spaniards did
in three centuries."

"It is one thing," retorted Mr.
Spooner, "to kill men with arms in their hands against the government and against the flag. It is another
to burn them."

Senators Much Excited.

Senators, in their excitement, seemed for the moment to have forgotten
the subject of debate. The chair (Mr.
Case) was able with difficulty to maintain order. When the discussion
finally was ended for the day, the chair fell called upon seriously to admonish senators that the rules of the body had not been observed, and after reading the rule which had been violated he expressed the hope that the future senators would have a care to observe it. Such an admonition has not been made by the presiding officer of the senate in many years.

Prior to the outbreak on the Philippines question the senate concluded
the consideration of the bill establishing a department of commerce,
and passed it. The name of the new department was changed to that of the department of commerce and la-

The American Woman and Her Gowns

By Mrs. CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW

THOROUGHLY ENJOY WHAT IS KNOWN AS SOCIETY. IT SEEMS TO ME EVERY WOMAN OUGHT TO TRY TO FIT HER-SELF TO PRESIDE GRACEFULLY AND GRACIOUSLY AT THE HEAD OF HER HUSBAND'S TABLE, and I am delighted that I am to preside over Senator Depew's. America seems almost like an undiscovered country to me, for I went abroad when I was but a little girl and have lived almost ever since in Paris. Still, once an American always an American is my motto, and I do not think an American becomes less an American because he or she happens to be living for some time abroad. I don't feel the least bit expatriated. I suppose that I shall become so infatuated with America I shall never want to go back to Paris except—well, except for gowns. I brought over twelve trunks full of new ones.

I THINK EVERY WOMAN SHOULD GO TO PARIS FOR HER GOWNS—YES, EVEN AMERICANS.

For I think most of our best dressed American women are those who have allowed their own taste to be modified and deepened by London or Paris masters of the mode. Not that I want to be too positive, you know, for I've been so long away, but from what I've seen of American women abroad I'm quite sure of what I say. I have for so many years been used to the cosmopolitan life of Paris that I'm sure I shall feel at once at home in Washington.

reciprocity hearings were resumed before the ways and means committee, with delegates representing the beet sugar industry of Colorado and a number of Cubans, representing the planters of the island, in attendance. F. K. Carey, of Colorado, spoke of the development of the beet sugar industry of Colorado and its bright prospects, if not endangered by Cuban concessions, which, he asserted, would redound to the great advantage of the American Sugar Refining Company. A bubble which had been pricked, he said, was that Cuba was suffering from starvation. This idea had been strenuously encouraged by the pamphleteering of the sugar company and yet the claim had been torn to pieces during these hearings. Representative Hopkins said Mr. Carey's assertion of injury to the beet sugar industry was only an assumption and he expressed a belief that a reduction could be made or a certain percentage without destroying the beet sugar industry.

Representatives Dalzell and Grosvenor took part in the discussion, stating that the industry to the domestic producers had been shown by this and other witnesses. Mr. Grosvenor remarked that any one could see this result, who could put two and two together.

F. B. Machado, head of the Cuban delegation of planters, said in part:

"The Platt amendment, attached as an appendage to our constitution, chained the Cubans to this country to such extent that we are powerless to help ourselves, or to develop our internal life, because the pathways for dealing with outsiders are closed to us. Therefore, Cuba must starve if necessary without even the right to ask for relief. It has been said here that the Cubans has the cheek to knock at the door for alms, like beggars. The Cubans will be eternally grateful to you for giving us our liberty, even with the Platt amendment. But that does not mean we are eternally forbidden to come to you and that your final word has been said in Cuba. As we have no personality, at whose door shall we knock?"

REAR ADMIRAL KIMBERLY DEAD.

Never Evaded a Duty During His
Naval Career of Fifty-five Years.

Washington, Jan. 29.—The navy department was informed of the death from heart disease of Rear Admiral Lewis A. Kimberly (retired) at West Newton, Mass.

Rear Admiral Kimberly was one of the officers first appointed on the Schley court of inquiry last summer. He was compelled, however, to decline the duty on account of his health. His reluctance to evade any duty was shown by his pathetic statement to the secretary of the navy.

CIRCULATION STATEMENT.

The sworn paid circulation of the EVENING NEWS REVIEW January 1, 1902, TWO THOUSAND TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY (2,250).

A net gain since March 1, 1901, of ONE THOUSAND THREE HUNDRED AND SEVENTY-THREE (1,373) subscribers.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 29, 1902.

If the people of this city desire that East Liverpool shall be brought under the registration laws by action of the present legislature, now is the time to prove it. As we understand it, Representative Crist stands ready to introduce the bill which has been drawn up at the instance of the Republican city committee and push it to passage, if possible, provided he is satisfied that the citizens are in favor of the measure. The arguments in favor of registration have been put forth again and again and need not be repeated. That they are valid is proven by the fact that no successful attempt to controvert them has been made. From expressions which have been published from time to time in this paper, we believe that the great majority of the citizens of East Liverpool earnestly desire a registration law. That being the case, there ought to be no difficulty in getting it. It is more needed here than in many of the large cities. Unless there is a general awakening on the subject, so that the wishes of the public may be made plainly manifest to the legislature, the whole matter is likely to go by default. The bill has been long enough before the people so that it should be fully understood, and if the people want it made a law, now is the time to work for it.

Representative Crumpacker, of Indiana, has drawn up and is prepared to submit to congress a bill providing for a reduced representation in congress in such southern states as disregard the law and the constitution by disfranchising large numbers of citizens. His bill, in brief, provides that in any state where voters are disfranchised, on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude, the representation in congress shall be reduced in the proportion that the number of disfranchised voters bears to the total voting population of the state. Mr. Crumpacker has prepared a brief showing that the provision comes within the scope of the constitution, and is justified by the over-representation from some of the southern states. He will cite for illustration the fact that the vote for congress in his district, the Tenth Indiana, in 1900, was 53,220, while the entire vote of the first six districts in Georgia was but 54,018. The representation in the southern states shows many instances of this kind, and Mr. Crumpacker will appeal for legislation remedying the evil. The question is likely to lead to spirited discussion in congress, whether a decision is reached or not.

Directory compilers at Youngstown estimate the population of that city to be over 54,000, a gain of nearly 10,000 since the 1900 census. Directory men usually give generous figures, but still it cannot be doubted that Youngstown is growing rapidly, both in industries and in population. An energetic and enterprising board of trade is doing much to add to the city's wealth and its future prospects.

The old adage, "It is better to wear out than to rust out," is emphasized by recent statistics from a high medical authority, showing that men who spend their lives in idleness die off much earlier than those who are engaged in steady and gainful occupations. It is well known that an idle brain is the devil's workshop, but it is not so well known that physical decay is its accompaniment.

The state board of charities, in its annual report, sensibly and strongly urges that the benevolent institutions of the state be removed from policies entirely. They should be run on a business basis, with a view solely to fulfilling their humane mission in the best interests of the state and of their inmates.

The east is still "the enemy's country," as regards the late William J. Bryan. The Democratic legislators of New Jersey supported for United States Senator Congressman McDermott, who repudiated Bryanism away back in 1896.

The Kentucky senate has adopted a resolution providing for the abolition of the ballot and the substitution of the viva voce system in that body. Evidently the Kentucky senate is going to keep right on looking for trouble.

Cincinnati wants Prince Henry to stop there to see her wonders. She should not fail to exhibit the man who saved $400,000 while drawing a salary of $25 per week.

Admiral Schley and General Miles have wisely decided not to enter politics. It is easy for a hero to lose his popularity by hunting political prefer-

There is nothing worth having that is not worth asking for. If East Liverpool wants registration, it should ask for it loudly and earnestly.

Bills for the creation of new state senatorial positions cannot be too closely scrutinized by the legislature.

Though his bark is worse than his bite, Pitchfork Tillman ought to be muzzled just the same.

OBITUARY

Rev. William Hastings.

Rev. William Hastings, of Toronto former pastor of the M. P. church in East Liverpool, and one of the best known ministers of that denomination in eastern Ohio, died at his home yesterday afternoon at 4:30 after a protracted illness, due to a general breaking down. He was born in Guernsey county in 1830, received a common school education, attended Oberlin university for three years, and in 1852 was graduated from Madison college. He was engaged in teaching until 1855. In 1856 he joined the Muskingum M. P. conference, of which was still a member. He held several pastorate, including East Liverpool and later Toronto, where he preached until superannuated. Besides being pastor here, preceding Rev. Mr. Swift, he for a time supplied the pulpit in the absence of a regular pastor.

Rev. Mr. Hastings enlisted in 1861 in Company B, Seventeenth O. V. I. In 1863 he resigned and came home on account of ill health, re-enlisting the following year. In the fall of 1864 he became chaplain of the One Hundred and Forty-Third regiment. After the war he resumed his clerical labors, winning a reputation as a powerful preacher. In 1854 he married Annie Crites, of Fairfield county, O., who died in 1888. He is survived by several brothers and sisters and by the following children: Frank L. and William C. Fostoria; Mrs. G. W. McCreary, Wellsburg; Mrs. Flora Martin, Tiffin, and J. T. Hastings, Toronto. He was a member of the Masons, I. O. O. F. and G. A. R. The funeral will take place from the M. P. church, Toronto, Friday at 1 p. m., Rev. F. C. Hummel conducting the services.

Mrs. Alexander Connell.

Mrs. Alexander Connell, of Sixth street, passed peacefully away at her home at 11:30 last night, from old age. She was born in Calcutta Mar. 6, 1815. Her maiden name was Jane Azzell. She was educated in Calcutta schools. At the age of 26 she was married to Alex Connell. Eight children have been born to bless the union, of whom John K. Connell, of Indianola, Ia., and Mrs. S. C. Milligan, of Kingman, Kan., survive. Nine grandchildren are left to mourn their loss.

Mr. and Mrs. Connell moved to East Liverpool about seventeen years ago, and they have since made their home at the corner of Sixth and Jackson streets. Mrs. Connell has lived in Columbiana county all her life and she has many friends who will be pained to hear of her demise.

While still a young girl Mrs. Connell joined the United Presbyterian church, and had remained a devout member. She was energetic and very unassuming. She possessed a good and generous disposition and was best loved by those who knew her most. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed.

Edward McGaffick.

Edward McGaffick, aged 10 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. McGaffick, of Elizabeth avenue, died this morning at 3 o'clock after several months' illness. While the arrangements for the funeral have not been completed, the services will likely be held Friday afternoon, interment being made at Riverview cemetery.

POTTERY NEWS

Ambrose Cartwright has returned home from a meeting of the board of directors of the Barberville Pottery company. When seen yesterday afternoon regarding the progress being made on the new factory he said: "The floor on the second story was completed Monday and next week the kilns will be started. We expect to have the plant in operation about June 1, and will make all sorts of novelties. We have just received applications from three young men for positions in the clay department, but have not assured positions to any. We have many applications on file, and have only secured the services of two men—that of a manager and one to look after our machinery."

Kilndrawers' local No. 17, at their next meeting, will form a permanent relief association. At the last meeting a special committee was appointed to meet next Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock to form plans for an organization of this character, the same to be presented at the meeting. As No. 17 is composed of almost 180 members, many of these will join the relief association upon its formation.

As soon as the weather moderates the Bradshaw China company will build two new decorating kilns. They are only making dinner ware now, and will make that a specialty. They are putting in a system of water pipes for fire protection and will have 12 lines of hose—one in each department.

A new gas burner will be tried under the boilers at the Diamond pottery tomorrow. This plant which has only been in partial operation this week will be started in full next week, according to a statement of a member of the company yesterday.

Turners' and Handlers' local No. 10, at their meeting next Monday evening, will consider the proposition to form a sick and benefit association. It was proposed to talk this subject over at the last session, but time would not permit.

James Mount, a jiggerman at the East Liverpool pottery, has commenced the erection of a five-room frame house in Chester. It will be ready for occupancy within two months.

George Horner, a kilnman at the Buckeye pottery, entertained a number of friends at his home at Calcutta last evening. A number of persons from this city were present.

George Mountford, a presser at the old end of the K. T. & K. pottery, has resigned his position. He is working for an insurance company.

John C. Watt, traveling freight agent of the C. & R. I. railroad, was in the city yesterday visiting William Vocial, of the Union pottery.

Howard Goddard, a kilndrawer at the Sevres pottery, is unable to work. He is suffering with an abscess under his right arm.

A number of pottery firms are said to have been caught in the failure of Weldon Brothers, Pittsburgh growers.

Claud Smith, formerly a kilnman at the Vodrey pottery, has taken a position on the glost end at the Buckley.

The Cartwright Pottery company is preparing to load a car of casks for Sioux City, Ia.

A meeting of the clay workers will be held Thursday evening.

AT THE THEATER

A dramatic treat is in store for the theatergoers at the opera house next Saturday evening when Miss Alice Archer will make her first appearance in this city in Forbes Heerman's comedy drama, "Jess, of the Bar Z Ranch," a story of life in the far west. The piece will be presented in an elaborate manner and by practically the same cast which supported Belle Archer in the original production. Don't fail to see this, but be brave and bring your sisters, your cousins and your aunts, and have a good old fashioned laugh all together.

Farcie comedy will hold the boards at the opera house Friday evening when Welch-Francis and their select company of fun makers will produce the funniest of all farce comedies, "The Flip Mr. Flop." The comedy is strongly Irish, and it is a well known fact that all Irish comedies of this nature are funny when properly produced. Welch and Francis are the foremost Irish stars in the business, and there is not a dull moment in the entire play. During the action of the play, a number of first class specialties are produced.

MORBID CROWD TO HANGING.

Disgusting Scenes at Harrisburg.

Rowe and Keppe Executed.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 29.—Weston N. Keppe and Henry Rowe were hanged in the Harrisburg jail yard, in the presence of 1,000 people, for the murder of Charles W. Ryan, who was fatally wounded in a struggle while the men were robbing the Halifax National bank, at Halifax, Pa.

The murderers went to their death without a shudder and neither made any statement on the gallows or at any time since their trial. The crush for admission to the jail was so great that it required the combined efforts of the police force and the sheriff's deputies to keep the crowd away from the entrances.

Several of the jurors were forced to fight their way through the crowd into the prison. The house tops and telegraph poles in the vicinity were crowded with people eager to witness the execution. Two men with a camera secured admittance to the jail for the purpose of securing a snap shot of the hanging. Prison Warden Meetch detected them and took the camera away from them until after the execution. The bodies of Rowe and Keppe were sent last evening to Lykens. They will be buried from the homes of their parents in that place on Thursday.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

William McDevitt, Accused of a Grave Offense, Bound Over to Court.

William McDevitt, better known as "Fiddle," who was arrested last Friday evening, was arraigned before Mayor Dennis yesterday afternoon. He was charged with making an assault upon Evelyn Robinson, the story of which was published the day following his arrest.

To the mayor he strongly denied being guilty of the crime and as an explanation for the girl being found in his stable he said that Mr. Robinson, the girl's father, had given her a nickel to buy some chicken feed, but lost the money and was afraid to return home, whereupon he induced her to go to the stable while he endeavored to get her a nickel. The story did not satisfy the mayor, and the prisoner was bound over to court in the sum of $300, and remanded to jail.

These gentlemen have had years of experience in the drilling of wells and are confident that the results from their new leases will be good.

Mr. Johnson has been drilling on the Glen farm in Jefferson county and recently sustained a considerable loss owing to his tools catching and breaking off in a well. After having them repaired he will remove them to the Lawson territory, where he expects to begin drilling April 1.

STORE AND DWELLING AT SIGNAL WERE BURNED.

Postmaster Cope And His Family Had a Narrow Escape And Saved Nothing.

The residence and store and also the postoffice of L. Cope, at Signal, were destroyed by fire at night. Mr. Cope heard a noise upstairs, went up and picked up a bed-tick and started to put it out of the door. It wedged in the casing and he could not get it out. He was shut in until the tick burned. When he got out he was severely burned.

The family saved nothing but their night clothes.

DIRECTORS WERE CHOSEN

At the Meeting of the Gas Apparatus Construction Company Yesterday.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Gas Apparatus and Construction company was held yesterday afternoon in the Potters' club, almost every share of stock being represented.

The condition of the plant at Chester was discussed and upon a report of Constructor A. W. Brown, the plant was accepted as completed by the inventor, Judge Williams, of Sewickley. The last parts of the machinery in this stock were almost twice as great as those in any other one stock.

The further advance in raw copper and the heavy buying in London was taken to indicate that large requirements have been left uncovered, waiting for the price to touch bottom.

The advance in Amalgamated Copper was taken by speculators to indicate a sentiment in favor of an advance by the Standard Oil company, which has long been supposed to favor quietude in speculation. Coupled with a published utterance of J. P. Morgan, expressing confidence in the maintenance of the country's prosperity, the effect was to impress speculators with the idea that the great financial powers were again in accord in favoring higher prices for stocks. The upward movement broadened and gained force up to the close, which was at about the best and strong. The reported agreement to maintain rates among western railroads and meat packers was a strengthening influence. The speculation in Sugar was based on the expectation of an advance in the production and had an important sympathetic effect.

The bond market was strong and individual bonds were not so overwhelmingly conspicuous as of late. Total sales, per value, $1,385,000.

TRIAL OF LAWYER PATRICK.

Capt. Baker Testified—Dr. Williams Was Cross-Examined.

New York, Jan. 29.—A large part of yesterday's session in the trial of Lawyer Albert T. Patrick for the murder of millionaire William Marsh Rice was taken up in the examination of Captain James A. Baker, of Houston, Tex. He told of coming to New York and being surprised that Mr. Rice had engaged Patrick as his lawyer. He also related what occurred at his meeting with Patrick after Rice's death.

Early in the session yesterday Dr. Hamilton Williams, whose cross-examination was continued from Monday, reiterated his opinion that the condition of Mr. Rice's lungs was due to the inhalation of a gaseous irritant.

The landlady of the boarding house where Robinson lived said that he was somewhat irregular in his habits and that he did not always come home to dinner; but when at 2 o'clock in the morning it was reported that he had not appeared Captain Neale began to be uneasy. As he expressed it, "If Robinson has skipped, there'll be nothing doing."

Translated this meant that if a humble clerk of unknown antecedents had stained his soul with crime for $500 there remained only the profitless task of catching him and sending him to jail.

Elmendorf had no idea that Robinson had "skipped," principally because there was no apparent reason for it. The clerk had delivered the note to Elsie and had then left the house, as the testimony of the servant, a reliable woman long in Mrs. Simmons' employ, satisfactorily proved. That Robinson had immediately returned and committed the atrocious crime for a reward so small was, in Elmendorf's opinion, a wild hallucination, though he had heard such a hypothesis stated. But that Robinson's extreme agitation when brought to the scene was due to a more intimate knowledge of the affair than he had disclosed was a much more reasonable proposition.

As to the money in the note, Elmendorf was far from regarding it as the motive for the crime. He believed that the money had been there, for that was one of the few points upon which Elsie had made a positive declaration in her first response to questions, as Elmendorf had been informed by Kendall in their earliest interview at the hospital. She had said that she had removed the money and had laid it, with the note, upon the table. It had been stolen, but probably as a "blind," unless, indeed, some person connected with the police had comforted an itching palm with it.

Upon receiving his orders in regard to Robinson the detective went down town to the building in which Alden's offices were situated. He took up an inconspicuous position near by and after half an hour of waiting had the pleasure of wishing Mr. Robinson good morning upon the sidewalk at a point about one hundred feet from the building. This was unfortunate for Captain Neale's man, Barnes, who was waiting in the doorway.

Elmendorf made no secret of his identity or of his errand, and Robinson seemed quite undisturbed.

"I was pretty badly upset yesterday afternoon," he said. "It was all so sudden and shocking. Of course I had no special interest in Miss Miller. Probably I haven't seen her more than three or four times in my life. But to think that this should have happened so soon after I had left her! I tell you it gave me a turn. I didn't feel much like being alone, so I went to see a fellow whom I know and spent the night in his rooms. How is Miss Miller this morning?"

Elmendorf replied that his advices were altogether favorable, and little more was said until they had entered Alden's private office, in which Robinson had a desk.

"I thought you knew Miss Miller quite well," said Elmendorf, taking a chair. "You spoke of her by her first name yesterday."

"Did I?" said Robinson, opening his eyes wide.

and, like any other man, you didn't object to seeing her again even if it was only for four seconds. That's all there is in it. So why not tell the truth?"

"I don't deny that I had some such idea."

"It was your motive for offering to take the note, and you had no other. Isn't that a fact?"

"Well, yes," replied Robinson, "between ourselves, that's the truth."

"You had no errand at your room?"

"Of course not."

"Then why did you go there?" demanded Elmendorf. "Why did you go straight over there from Miss Miller's house?"

"I thought I'd change my clothes," said Robinson desperately.

"Did you change them? Haven't you got on the same suit now that you wore down town yesterday?"

"Yes," said Robinson. "I—I changed my mind."

"Instead of your clothes," rejoined Elmendorf, with a smile. "By the way, where were you born?"

Robinson's expression revealed some slight relief.

"In Honolulu," he said. "I lived there until I was 21. Then my parents moved to Amoy, China. I came to this country about two years ago."

"Where did you land?"

"San Francisco."

"Date of arrival and name of steamer?" said Elmendorf, taking up his notebook again.

Robinson was undisturbed this time.

"I've forgotten the exact date," he said, "and the steamer was a tramp. I can't recall her name."

Asked what he had done in San Francisco, Robinson replied that he had drifted across the continent immediately, arriving in New York in April, a year ago. Very soon afterward he had had the good fortune to make the acquaintance of Mr. Alden, who had taken a liking to him and given him his present position. He had few friends in this country. There was no one who knew him better than Alden did.

"You looked to me like a college bred man," said Elmendorf, whereupon Robinson replied that there were excellent schools in Honolulu.

Elmendorf traced out a pattern in the rug with the end of his cane. "The man has a record," he was saying to himself. "This story is a work of art. No cable to Honolulu, and Amoy is a long way from Mulberry street. It will take about six months to prove that this man never lived in the Sandwich Islands unless we can strike his trail around here."

"Did you carry that cane yesterday?" asked Elmendorf suddenly, and Robinson promptly went into a blue chill which he strove to conceal.

"Yes—of course—no," he stammered.

The VALUE of LOVE IN A PLAY

By... VIOLA ALLEN

HERE IS NO SINGLE FEATURE OF A PLAY WHICH SO MAKES OR MARS FOR SUCCESS AS A PRETTY LOVE SCENE.

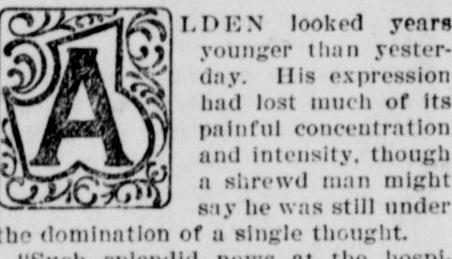

It is as important to the drama proper as a good tune which anybody can whistle is to a musical comedy or a thrilling, soul stirring climax to a melodrama. A PLAY WITHOUT A LOVE SCENE OR WITHOUT SOME SITUATION OR SERIES OF SITUATIONS IN WHICH THE ATTRACTION OF WOMAN FOR MAN WAS NOT DISPLAYED WOULD BE AN ANOMALY AND NINETY TIMES OUT OF A HUNDRED WOULD NOT BE TOLERATED BY AN AUDIENCE. This, of course, does not apply to tremendous tragedies, historical dramas or dramatic compositions in which the other deep passions of the soul are depicted. It is possible to have a piece from which love is tabooed. The experiment has been tried time and time again by playwrights, and a few successes have been attained. But in the main even in tragedies and historical plays the absence of the love element dooms the affair to failure. Probably the reason why the majestic tragedy of "Lear" has never made a permanent impression upon the theater going world is due to this cause. It turns upon filial ingratitude and is one of the strongest dramas ever written, but it does not and cannot appeal to the heart.

Emerson says that all the world loves a lover, and this neat epigram applies as much to audiences as to the public at large. A little book was once published entitled "How Men Propose," and it ran through I do not know how many editions. It is the same with audiences. THEY ENJOY SEEING HOW LOVE IS MADE. They take delight in the playwright's conception of the fact and the player's interpretation. It matters not whether the spectator is old or young, rich or poor, a bachelor or ten times married, he takes an invariable interest in the presentation of the tender passion.

"I think that was what I went to my room for."

CHAPTER X.
"CLARENCE."

ALDEN looked years younger than yesterday. His expression had lost much of its painful concentration and intensity, though a shrewd man might say he was still under the domination of a single thought.

"Such splendid news at the hospital," said he, "that I ventured down here for a few minutes. I can see her this afternoon, Jack," he added, addressing Robinson, "you'll have to look out for my mail for the next few days. I shall be at St. Winifred's all the time, or at the house next door on the west. Any news this morning, Mr. Elmendorf?"

"No," replied the detective. "I came down to have a little talk with Mr. Robinson, but as neither of us knows anything the result was not important. By the way, can I write a note at your desk?"

Alden was just raising the lid.

"Certainly," said he, and Elmendorf sat down and wrote fast with a sputtering pen.

"I don't see any blotter here," he said, when the pen stopped scratching.

"Never use one," rejoined Alden; "I don't have time. There's a pad, but I never blot anything on it."

"You don't spill as much ink as I do," he said, when the pen stopped scratching.

"Never use one," rejoined Alden; "I don't have time. There's a pad, but I never blot anything on it."

"Habit of mine," replied Alden.

"How do you happen to know anything about it?"

"I saw the note you wrote yesterday."

Alden flushed.

"I couldn't help it," said Elmendorf hastily. "And let me tell you that I'm greatly mistaken if the result of my seeing it isn't very important."

"In what way?"

Elmendorf begged to be excused from giving an immediate answer, and Alden did not insist.

"This 'making trouble' that you mentioned last evening," he said, "is getting its work in this morning. I am shadowed by the most conspicuous man in Greater New York. Every time he fancies that I have forgotten his presence he barks like a dog and remarks to every one who will listen that the grip is worst in hot weather."

Elmendorf glanced at Alden with an anxious eye. He seemed to have something on his mind, but he said only: "I'm surprised. There are shadows on the force who can't be picked out so easily."

Alden regarded him intently over the top of the desk upon which he was leaning.

"See if I've got any more letters outside, Jack," he said and added when Robinson had left the room, "Do you mean to say there's another one?"

"Sure," returned Elmendorf, "one for trouble and one for business. I don't know why I tell you these things, except that I hate Neale. He wants to know where you were yesterday, and he thinks you'll go there again. He expects you to throw the man with the grip and never notice the other one."

"I'll remember this, Elmendorf," said Alden.

"It's a gift," replied the detective. "As for that, you've paid me already with the information that you don't use a blotter. Good morning. I'll see you later in the day."

It may have been about half an hour afterward when he presented himself at the house where John Robinson lived and introduced himself to the landlady thereof, with the result that

LL. D., Editor

LATE AND IMPORTANT PHASES OF CHILD STUDY.

BY COLIN A. SCOTT, PH. D.,
Professor of Psychology and Child Study
in the Wisconsin Normal School.

VIII.—Nascent Periods; Doll Play.

WIOTHOUT the example and the suggestion of others few girls would play doll, but without a native impulse of some kind the example and suggestion would fall on barren ground. Where these two forces meet and fructify we have the nascent period for doll play. The doll is for the child mainly a means of representation. It affords him an opportunity for imitation and thus of realization of experience which could not otherwise be obtained. Mr. Ellis shows that within the doll period solid dolls are preferred at the beginning, but toward the end of the period paper dolls are much more in demand. The facts show that these latter are desired, among other reasons, because they are easier of manipulation. They may be manufactured quickly, and a greater number may be used. These features appear to be advantageous because by means of them more complex representations can be carried out.

It has been customary for adults to refer the girl's doll play to the instinct of motherhood. Dr. Harris repeats this notion and says that girls give up playing with dolls when they do because of the approach of puberty and with it the emotion of shame. The girl begins to feel the unsatisfactoriness of a mere symbol of a baby because she is able to desire more intensely the reality.

But, as Mr. Ellis' carefully collated observations show, girls play all kinds of things besides mother and baby with dolls. Cross teacher is a favorite game. Actual dolls are not absolutely necessary. A row of buttons will do for the children and a bigger one for the teacher. At other times the child uses herself or other children, animals, etc., for some of the characters. This runs into forms where dolls are dispensed with.

Any event which is striking to the child is represented by means of dolls. Sickness, death and funerals are very common. The problems of the future life are not neglected. After being killed and buried, dolls are dug up to see if they have gone to heaven. President Stanley Hall gives a case where children had tied one big doll to the gusset. This doll was called the god doll. When their other dolls died, they were given one toss upward. If they touched the god doll, they went to heaven; if not, they went to the other place. Dolls are by no means always babies. They are quite frequently about the same age as the person who plays with them and are often supposed to be grown up. Colored dolls are also frequent with white children and militate against the exclusiveness of the motherhood idea.

The range of complexity of the matters represented by means of dolls is only limited by the experience and imagination of the children. The present writer collected a number of plays with dolls, which are very significant for the educator. The following may be cited as an example: Children of about the age of 9 used to play doll in an attic, especially on rainy days. Here they had a number of stands and tables. On one of these they had black dolls cut out of paper. This was Africa. On another they had Chinese dolls painted with gayly colored clothing. From their parents they obtained tea and rice, which were laid on the table. On another stand they had tattooed savages, representing south sea islanders. They made ships of paper and carried the products of one country to another. Missionaries landed on the south sea islands and were duly killed and eaten up. They read all they could about these countries and wearied their parents with questions. During all this time they never once thought of asking their teacher for information, although she was teaching geography at the time. She was occupied largely with the definition of continents, islands, etc. She also concerned herself much with the boundaries of states and their capitals. As for the geography and history, the economics, the literature and the art work involved in the children's doll play, these were not shown on her course of study. The children showed ordinary common sense in not going to her for information or for help.

Children's doll play reveals almost everything they are thinking about. They whisper secrets to them; they show by their treatment of them their real feelings as to right and wrong, justice, punishments, etc. By means of them they objectify their own inner states and make internal their outer observations. This is all done in the most concrete manner possible. It is no abstract representation. Movements and bodily feelings are called into play as well as reactions of a more intellectual order. Doll play, in fact, from a brain standpoint, is a means of transition from the preponderant activity of the kinesthetic regions, connected with the bodily movements and feelings characteristic of the earlier years to that of the associational regions necessary for complete human development.

Doll play thus means the coming in of wide trains of imaging, which at first are not easily controlled without some other sensation. The child puts a big button down for the cross teacher. The imagination paints this figure for a little while and then goes on to the smaller buttons. The child is now free to pay complete attention in this direction. If the buttons were not there, it would happen at this stage, with a narrow memory span, that the first image or train of images about the teacher would be forgotten.

But now, coming to the end of the second train of images, she sees the big button before her eyes. She is immediately brought back to the first image and can go on with it, modifying it in every direction. The buttons have been the means of her organizing or holding together a larger range of images or of increasing her power to pay attention or to grasp a wide assemblage of events. This synthesizing power is essential in a properly developed human being, and the long period of childhood would be an advantage in the struggle for existence if this alone were gained.

It may be said that the teacher, when she braces her pupils in their seats, suppresses every movement and focuses attention to the minutest circle possible, is attempting to do something of the same kind. This may be possible in the upper grades, but within the nascent period for doll play nature has a better way. She begins with the movements and bodily sensations and out of them develops somewhat irregularly and by fits and starts the higher associational centers, which means the manipulation of wider trains of images. Always some of the dolls or buttons are kept in motion and are being constantly felt and handled as well as seen and thought about. If there are gaps in the train of images, as is natural, these are filled up with movements and bodily sensations. There is then the largest possible synthesis, since all these things are connected in one experience and not divided as in ordinary recitations. The personal perception of the body, which means sensation, will fatigue do not appear. Double personality is not encouraged. The intellectual imaging is carried on the surface of a healthy emotional condition. Growth is made possible, since the roots as well as the leaves are allowed to live.

These partial experiences are made much more complete when they are acted out, but since many of these require also the co-operation of others, which is not obtainable when needed, a substitute is found which is controllable—namely, representation in miniature by means of dolls. The irritating desires caused by or identical with these dammed up images are thus radiated and discharged. Doll play is a movement toward a more complete experience, and it succeeds because it does not suppress, but liberates and synthesizes, energy.

In its more general aspects it is, of course, evident that doll play is simply typical of many other forms of play into which the intellectual and social element enters to any extent.

A complete psychological history of the child would give us a detailed account of thousands of such nascent periods as those already mentioned. They would overlap one another in every imaginable way, as they actually do in life. Their discovery and analysis would give us the keys by which we could bring to bear at the proper time the most suitable environment for the mental and moral nutrition of the child. Time would be saved and injury avoided, for we would no longer be in danger of working on immature capacities nor of neglecting others until their period of growth has passed by forever. What an advantage, for example, it would be if instead of needing to support a compulsory education department we had a child study account of this problem of truancy and vagabondage which would reveal the nascent period and display the desires and images which make up the mental condition of the truant, the signs by which these are indicated and the means by which they may be radiated and discharged or made part of a completer form of living.

The child of the present day and the savage child were probably alike in

PEACE OUTLOOK DARK

Holland's Proposal to England May Have Been Rejected.

DID BOERS INSPIRE OFFER?

Not Believed Dutch Premier Would Have Acted, Unless He Had Assurance the South Africans Would Agree to a Settlement.

London, Jan. 29.—The government leader, A. J. Balfour, announced in the house of commons that no overtures for peace had been received from any one authorized to speak in behalf of the Boers. A communication was, however, received late on Saturday last from the Dutch government, which is under consideration, and Mr. Balfour hoped shortly to lay the communication and the reply to it before the house.

London, Jan. 29.—The announcement of Mr. Balfour caused a sensation in the lobbies of parliament. Lord Rosebery is generally credited with having brought about this movement on the part of the Dutch government.

It is recalled that Mr. Kuyper, the Dutch premier, in an interview published about Christmas time, was represented to have urged the impossibility of Holland's intervening in South Africa unless she had reason to think that both parties wished it. Consequently it is regarded as certain that the present move was inspired by the Boer delegates.

The Petit Bleu, of Brussels, the organ of the Krugerites, flatly denied last night that the Boer delegates had one respect—they were both most thoroughly impressed each by his own environment. It takes very little sense of proportion to see that the modern home is to the modern child what the ancient wigwam was to the savage child. The child of the stone age did not probably hanker after a period 500,000 years before his time. Why should the modern child do so either?

The theory is really a piece of mysticism and derived from a course of study standpoint rather than from the natural interests of the child. This is not, however, saying that children have no interest in history nor that building wigwams, making pottery, etc., are not a great improvement on what formerly occupied the ground. These occupations are after all a form of play. The difficulty is that they have half the life taken out of them by being predestined by the teacher. By this conduct the teacher robs the children of a considerable part of the motor side of life and lessens their opportunities for finding themselves a cause. Moreover, by compelling some children to make pottery, e. g., who would rather do something else she also loses that variety which is essential to any concrete realization of life or satisfactory organization of society.

Claims Leyds Inspired It.

The Hague correspondent of The Daily Mail claims to have ascertained that Dr. Leyds inspired the Dutch foreign secretary, who was further advised by Prof. Asser, the international jurist, and adds that Dr. Leyds, the European representative of the Transvaal, is apparently attempting to draw Mr. Chamberlain, the British colonial secretary, to disclose the terms conditional upon the waiving of independence.

Editorially, The Daily News draws the inference that the government already replied, and has rejected the Dutch overtures as unauthorized, as otherwise Mr. Balfour would not have been in a position to promise the papers on the subject, this promise showing that no further negotiations were afoot.

This was the impression in the lobbies of the government leader and semi-official statements in government journals this morning declare the outlook for peace not hopeful.

BONUS SILVER SEIZED.

Counterfeit Coins Causing Trouble at Ponce—Expert Sent For.

San Juan, Porto Rico, Jan. 29.—Governor Hunt has cabled to the treasury department at Washington asking that an expert be sent here to settle the counterfeit question at Ponce, where $3,000 in bogus silver was recently seized. Business there is practically suspended. The merchants of Ponce are refusing to accept any silver coins of the dates of 1898, 1899, 1900 and 1901. The counterfeit dollars are poorly executed, but the alleged spurious halves and quarters defy detection. They are apparently of the full weight. The bankers here have examined samples of the silver from Ponce and say the coins are good. There are no experts here or at Ponce.

The chamber of commerce met yesterday and resolved to accept all apparently good silver until the arrival of the treasury agents.

A FINE CARD PARTY

UNIQUE ENTERTAINMENT AT MRS. L. W. HEALY'S HOME.

About 85 Ladies Enjoyed Her Hospitality—Decorations And Favors Unique.

One of the most beautiful events which has occurred in East Liverpool social circles this season was the card party given by Mrs. Louis W. Healy yesterday afternoon at her home in Thompson place.

The Healy residence was beautifully decorated, preference being given to yellow and white. The hall was especially pretty. Here, as everywhere, the color scheme was much in evidence. The doors leading into the several rooms were festooned in yellow and white crepe paper, caught back to form curtains. Up and down the stairs spruce and pine were used as the decoration, and on the railing large butterflies of crepe paper were used, the yellow and white alternating. The figure at the beginning of the stairway was dressed in a red and yellow gown and looked quite pretty, as she supported the incandescent lights, which were covered with pretty paper shades.

Progressive euchre and caroms were played. Pretty little bags made of crepe paper in the two predominating colors and with a slip designating the table, etc., were given to each lady. Each time a game was won, the lucky person received a tiny favor. At the conclusion of the game the guests all received favors in which were found artistic caps in various colors. Mrs. Jason H. Brookes won the first prize at euchre—a pretty picture; while Mrs. Jessie Smith won a pretty gold clock—prize at caroms.

The refreshments were very dainty. The cream was in various figures and the cake and confections in yellow and white. Nowling's orchestra imparted sweet strains throughout the afternoon.

Mrs. Healy was assisted in the dining room by the following ladies: Mrs. Tom Anderson, Mrs. Alf Kelly, Mrs. F. H. Croxall, Miss Hull, Miss Luale Jones and Anna Myers.

Each of the above ladies wore a dress made of crepe paper in the two shades chosen for the occasion, and each wore her hair done up in old style and powdered. The effect was most charming.

Two little girls, Olive Kerr and Jessie Murphy, also assisted the hostess at the door and upstairs. They wore paper dresses in yellow and white respectively.

Mrs. Healy was assisted in receiving by Miss May Hull, of Scranton, Pa., and Miss Hull, of Wheeling, W. Va. Each of these ladies wore pretty white dresses, as did the hostess.

About 85 ladies were in attendance and enjoyed the hospitality of a very charming home.

At 7 o'clock Mrs. Healy gave a dinner to her aids, their husbands and gentlemen friends. Covers were laid for 24. The affair was quite elaborate and was a pretty finale to a very delightful afternoon's entertainment.

Feeling Practices in Vague in the Celestial Kingdom.

It is one of the peculiarities of the Chinese that, while they have developed elaborate philosophies, none of them has led to any confidence in the uniformity of nature. Neither the people nor their rulers have any fixed opinion as to the causes of rainfall. The plan in some provinces when the need of rain is felt is to borrow a god from a neighboring district and petition him for the desired rain. If his answer is satisfactory, he is returned to his home with every mark of honor; otherwise he may be put out in the sun as a hint to wake up and do his duty. A bunch of willow is usually thrust into his hand, as willow is sensitive to moisture.

Another plan in extensive use is the building of special temples in which are wells containing several iron tablets. When there is a scarcity of rain, a messenger starts out with a tablet marked with the date of the journey and the name of the district making the petition. Arriving at another city, he pays a sum of money and is allowed to draw a new tablet from the well, throwing in his own by way of exchange. On the return journey he is supposed to eat only bran and travel at top speed day and night. Sometimes he passes through districts as greatly in need of rain as his own. Then the people in these places waylay him and, temporarily borrowing his tablet, get the rain intended for another place.

Prayers are usually made in the fifth and sixth months when the rainfall is always due, and a limit of ten days is set for their effective operation. Under such conditions rain usually falls during the prescribed time. When the prayers are in progress, the umbrella, among other objects, comes under the ban. In some provinces foreigners have been mobbed for carrying this harmless article at that time.
